

2-Billion Deficiency Appropriations Bill For Relief Goes to House

Measure Goes to Floor for Show-Down Over WPA Policies; 308-Million Total for the CCC Agency.

PASSAGE FORECAST

General Allocations of $1,425,000,000 Relief Money are Subject to 15 Per Cent Clause.

Washington, May 7 (AP)—A $2,364,229,712 deficiency appropriation bill carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief went to the house floor today for a show-down fight over WPA policies.

The big money bill was reported by the appropriations committee with $75,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 originally asked by President Roosevelt for continuing work relief activities shifted to the Civilian Conservation Corps. This made a $308,000,000 total for that agency, a fund designed to keep the authorized strength of the corps up to 350,000 and provide an average of 2,066 camps in the nine-month period until March 31, 1937.

Other major items in the last big measure to be cleared before adjournment were $458,531,860 for the social security program, $65,550,000 for public buildings and $39,900,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The relief money was allowed by the committee subject to maximum limitations on specified classes of expenditures, but with a 15 per cent leeway permitted between classes. Republican members of the committee contended this nullified any actual efforts at limitation and the minority raised a concerted demand that WPA be dismantled and replaced with a system of federal grants to states.

But administration leaders expressed confidence the bill as reported would pass the House this week or early next.

Zeppelin Hindenburg Over Atlantic Ocean Today Under Eckener Bound for Lakehurst

German Airship, Averaging 75 Miles Per Hour, Carries 51 Passengers, 56 Crew, 3,300 Pounds of Freight, 20 Sacks of Mail, Heads For Azores—Record Trip Probable, If Favorable Weather Holds—Earlier Graf Travelers Complain Ship Is Too Elegant, Less Romantic.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press) Aboard the Zeppelin Hindenburg, en route to America, May 7.—The giant German airship Hindenburg, averaging 75 miles an hour, struck out across the North Atlantic today on its first flight to America.

The great Zeppelin passed Land's End, the Cape of Southwest England, at 6:05 a. m. (1:05 a. m. E. S. T.), and 40 minutes later crossed the Solly Islands off the English coast.

Bright sunshine and clear skies prevailed.

Many of the 51 passengers remained awake all night to see the airship fly over the mouth of the Rhine and later glimpse the Isle of Wight, in the English Channel off the southern coast of England, just as the sun rose.

Turning slightly to the south after passing the Solly Islands at an altitude of 2,500 feet, the Hindenburg afforded its passengers the spectacle of a carpet of white clouds beneath the ship like a vast expanse of glaciers.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, president of the Zeppelin Company and traveling on the Hindenburg, said his favorite turn on the bridge was from mid-night to 4 a. m. (Capt. Ernest Lehman is actually in command of the Hindenburg but Dr. Eckener is his superior and can give orders.)

Carries 107 Persons

The Zeppelin, bearing 107 persons, 3,300 pounds of freight and 20 sacks of mail, headed on a course over the English channel, southwest to the Azores and then west to Lakehurst, N. J.

So favorable were conditions for this pioneer flight of the Hindenburg, opening a projected series of regular voyages, that a record trip might be made. The Zeppelin was expected originally to reach Lakehurst Saturday afternoon.

The luxurious 813-foot ship proceeded swiftly, smoothly, almost noiselessly on its journey after the delayed departure from Friedrichshafen last night at 9:30 p. m. (2:30 p. m. E. S. T.).

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commanding his third Zeppelin on a venture across the Atlantic to North America, held up the start for more than an hour to await the evening cool and the arrival of a plane carrying mails from Frankfurt.

The veteran commander said his desire to obtain the latest reports on North Atlantic weather conditions was another reason for the delay in the departure.

Rising lightly and easily from its base while thousands of residents of Friedrichshafen cheered, the Hindenburg skirted Germany's western border during the night, cruised up the Rhineland and crossed the Netherlands on the route to the ocean.

The great ship was bathed in moonlight on the first leg of the journey out of Germany. A searchlight played on the scenes below, showing swift progress and displaying an enchanting variety of scenery over the southwest state of Wurtemberg.

Leaving its homeland, the Zeppelin passed over the Netherlands in the early hours of this morning.

"After crossing the channel, we shall head for the Azores where strong westerly winds are blowing in the North Atlantic," Commander Eckener said.

From the Azores, 1,000 miles west of Portugal, the course lay west across the Atlantic to America.

The 51 passengers, among them 15 Americans, vied in expressions of surprise and admiration at the comfort of the flight.

Some veterans of earlier voyages in the Graf Zeppelin, which flew to America first in 1929 and now flies regularly between Germany and Brazil, even complained that the Hindenburg was too elegant, too much like an ocean vessel.

They believed the Graf, more "primitive," was also more romantic. Before his North American flight in the Hindenburg and the Graf, Dr. Eckener made his first Zeppelin flight over the Atlantic in 1924 when he took the LZ 124 (later the Los Angeles) from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst.

The new airship has made numerous trial flights over Germany and one crossing to South America, during which engine trouble developed on the return from Rio de Janeiro.

The four Diesel motors, giving the Hindenburg an average speed of 80 to 90 miles an hour, and a cruising range of about 8,000 miles, were removed, sent to the factory and inspected thoroughly before the start of the present flight.

Among the passengers are Sir Herbert Wilkins, the explorer, and Lady Wilkins; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Lewis of New York; Commander Murray Simon, retired British navy; and a party of 14 Americans and European newspaper men and women.

The 20 sacks of mail aboard weigh more than 3,000 pounds in addition to the freight, there are more than two tons of provisions, 60 tons of oil and even a barrel of beer.

Lehman and Republicans Set For a Radio Duel Over Social Security

Chief Executive Will Carry His Fight to the People Tonight and Assemblyman Wadsworth Will Reply Friday Evening.

OTHER MEASURES

Brownell "Public Enemy" Bill Designed to Break up Gangs Sent to Governor.

Albany, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—Governor Lehman and the Republican Assembly leadership prepared today for a radio duel over social security dominant issue of the 1936 Legislature — while leaders definitely shelved plans for adjournment this week.

The chief executive, angered by the Republican-controlled Assembly's second rejection of his program, will carry his fight to the people tonight.

Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth, son of Representative James W. Wadsworth, will give the Republican reply tomorrow night.

Both will speak for 15 minutes over WABC, New York and several affiliated stations. The governor's talk will begin at 6 p. m. (E. S. T.) and Wadsworth's at 6:15 p. m.

"I cannot understand the attitude of these men in killing one of the most humane pieces of legislation in a generation," the governor said, referring to the Assembly's rejection of his bill to align New York state with the federal social security act.

"The people should know the facts."

Assembly Speaker Irving M. Ives interpreted the governor's move as an attempt to keep the Legislature in session until the Assembly concurs with the Democratic-led Senate in the program.

Ives protested bitterly the governor's action "in continuing to attempt to force down the throats of the people, and the Legislature, a gigantic spending program which already has been twice rejected by the Assembly."

"The governor's conduct," he said, "is the same type of allegedly benevolent dictatorship which the New Deal and Mr. Roosevelt have forced upon the people since the unhappy day they took possession of Washington and the nation."

No Hope For Adjournment

Meantime, all hopes of adjournment by noon tomorrow, as originally anticipated, went a glimmering.

Observers believe that the session will be recessed tomorrow for the week-end, permitting reaction to the radio duel, and that the Democrats will move for another vote on the program early next week. Adjournment is not likely before Wednesday or Thursday.

Whether the governor's fight to obtain legislative approval of the program will finally alter the Republican stand is problematical.

It is known that nine or ten members of the Republican Assembly majority were ready yesterday to support the bill, sufficient to assure its passage, but all but four of them were persuaded by the leadership to remain "on the reservation."

Only three more Republican votes are needed to produce the necessary 76 votes to bring the bill from committee onto the floor for a record vote.

If that should be done, observers believe that even more Republicans will support the program.

Thus far, the only Republican assemblymen to join the Democrats in support of the program are Robert Crews, Kings county, and Arthur L. Swartz, Erie county.

Those who are reported willing to lend their support to the program argue that the Republican senators unanimously joined the Democratic bloc in voting for the program, and that the Assembly should follow suit.

The Republican Assembly leadership believes, an authoritative source within the party said, that it would be poor policy to embrace a New Deal program in New York state while the Republican party nationally is criticizing the Roosevelt administration.

Italians Seal Occupation as Duce Discusses New Empire; British Rush League Repair

Eden to Force Attitude of Legation Withdrawal or League Settlement of Ethiopia's Future at Geneva on Monday.

NO FASCIST ORDER

Badoglio Gives No Order for Withdrawal of Foreign Legations; Defense Committee Meets.

London, May 7 (AP)—Authoritative British sources said today that Italy has the right to ask that foreign legations be withdrawn from Ethiopia as a matter of military practice.

At the same time, these sources stated that the British government regards the question of the future political status of Ethiopia a matter for the League of Nations to decide.

It is with this attitude that Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, will go to Geneva for the League council session next Monday.

It was understood that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander in Ethiopia, had refrained thus far from asking that the British, United States, and other diplomatic missions retire from Addis Ababa.

The British legation will remain, at least for the present, to look after British citizens.

(Governments do not maintain legations in subject territories, provinces, or colonies of other nations.)

The foreign diplomats in Addis Ababa maintain constant contact with one another through the diplomatic corps there.

Considering Withdrawals

An authoritative source said the withdrawal of legations from Ethiopia would be considered in London as without political implication as regards the recognition of the Italian claim that Ethiopia is now owned by Italy.

It was understood that no exchanges on the subject have taken place between Italy and Great Britain and that, so far as the British are concerned, none is contemplated.

The imperial defense committee met today with the British precautions in the Mediterranean continuing.

Great Britain's naval strength there has been little diminished despite the continual arrivals of warships at home ports to give leaves to their crews, for others depart almost continuously to take their places.

H. M. S. Nelson will start for home next week from Gibraltar where it has been since January, but her sister-ship, H. M. S. Rodney, left today to replace her after a brief stay in home waters.

The gold crown of Emperor Haile Selassie lay safely hidden today in the dim vaults of a London bank.

The crown and other imperial insignia of the Ethiopian regu were brought secretly to London when the Italian advance began to threaten Addis Ababa. It was disclosed.

Tremendously heavy, the crown is brimless and is surmounted by a large cross.

France Not Ready

Paris, May 7 (AP)—France is not ready to relinquish her rights to the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railroad, sole modern public carrier in the empire of Ethiopia, official sources stated today.

These sources denied reports that Italian troops already had "requisitioned" the rail line. Transfer of the line could be brought about only by a free convention negotiated between the French company which owns it and an Italian concern, it was stated.

Woman in Missing

(By The Associated Press) The state department at Washington reported as missing 30-year-old Eleanor Meade, correspondent for an American News Agency. But Cor. Nathan Van H. Egbert, the American minister in Addis Ababa, who released the belief the may have left the city prior to the recent looting and rioting.

From Paris came the report, written by the usually well-informed Genetiere Taboulet, that Meaoling had informed France he was determined to assist Ethiopia as an Italian colony, with various "autonomous" tribes under a Fascist governor.

French and British economic interests would be jeopardized, it was reported to have prompted.

Solomone, now the conquered "Lion of Judah," reached Suva aboard H. M. S. Enterprise, en route to temporary exile in Palestine. He did not even appear on the deck of the British cruiser when he touched at the Egyptian port, however.

One of his spokesmen at Jerusalem said the fleeing emperor would remain in the Levant but a few days, departing thence for Europe. He has a villa in Switzerland.

Harry Campbell Taken By Federal Officials In Toledo Apartment

Cleveland, May 7 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, federal bureau of investigation chief, announced here that Harry Campbell, last of the Alvin Karpis gang, a woman described as his wife and Sam Coker, a minor gangland figure, were captured by federal agents early today at Toledo, O.

Hoover said the capture was effected without the firing of a shot. Campbell was taken to St. Paul, Minn., by airplane to face charges in the Edward Bremer kidnapping, he said.

Campbell showed what Hoover termed "little resistance" when the agents apprehended him, Hoover said.

Federal men surprised Campbell and the woman in a Toledo apartment.

On Campbell's person, the agents found a .45 caliber revolver and six clips of shells, Hoover said.

Agents said the girl claimed to have married Campbell at Bowling Green, O. in 1935. She gave her age as 19 years.

Hoover said that when Karpis and other members of the former Barker-Karpis gang escaped from a trap here in 1934 "they were tipped off" by two Cleveland politicians and were now investigating every detail of this angle.

The bureau chief said members of the Karpis gang had face lifting and finger print operations performed by a Cleveland surgeon.

"That doctor probably is dead now," Hoover said. "We have reason to believe he was killed after performing the operations. We believe his body was dumped into Lake Erie."

Hoover said that Campbell was married under the name of "Robert Miller" and that his wife did not know anything of his criminal career. She probably will be released, he said.

Hoover flew to Toledo last night to take personal charge of the federal men.

Hoover said Coker probably will be held for Oklahoma authorities as a parole violator where an undischarged 30-year sentence for bank robbery with stands against him.

Truce in Ethiopia

Washington, May 7 (AP)—The post-ponement of the treaty between Italy and Ethiopia, announced today, was reported to have prompted.

By ANDRUE BERDING

(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press) Rome, May 7.—Italy's southern army, still campaigning while northern troops controlled Addis Ababa, effected occupation today of Jijiga, strategic town 50 miles east of Harar, an official telegram announced.

Soon after the troops entered Jijiga, General Rodolfo Graziani landed there by airplane and formally took possession.

The occupation of Harar, second city of Ethiopia, was considered now a question of only a day or two.

The seven-month warfare would then be ended in the southeast, as well as on the northern front.

Jijiga, a highly important point, dominating the road which runs between Harar and Berbera, capital of British Somaliland.

Italians allege that it was over this road that the majority of Ethiopia's war material entered the empire.

No resistance was offered to the Italian entrance into Jijiga.

Bottai Takes Hold

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press) With the Italian Army in Addis Ababa, May 7.—The new Italian administration of Addis Ababa took a firm hold on the reins of authority today, enlisting even former imperial Ethiopian police for the task of restoring order.

Major Giuseppe Bottai, governor of Rome and new civil governor of Addis Ababa, directed a roundup of members of Emperor Haile Selassie's force, who had not taken to the hills, after sifting their ranks carefully.

Squadrons of imported Carabinieri put the natives to work cleaning up the wreckage of their own burned and pillaged town.

Major Bottai also sent out squads of infantrymen, lent by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, mounted Carabinieri and fast patrol cars to force the Ethiopian conceptions of peace into a European pattern.

Safety for foreigners seemed established firmly and a survey of foreign legations, including the beleaguered American mission, convinced Italian authorities little actual damage had been suffered by non-natives.

Legations Are Guarded

Small pickets of white Italian troops were posted at the American and French legations. The British legation with its Sikh guard of Indian troops was considered well protected against any recurrence of native brigandage.

Relations of all foreigners with Italian military and civil authorities were reported at Marshal Badoglio's headquarters to be "extremely cordial."

This applied also to natives who showed "welcome for the Italian occupation and its surcease from looting and killing."

Italians and other Europeans awaited the arrival of a company of French marines, sent by railroad from Djibouti, French Somaliland, to guard France's Addis Ababa legation.

With the Italians in control after their occupation of the capital Tuesday, the French legation signified its intention of sending the relief squad back to Djibouti with thanks.

Authorities estimated that 500 persons died in the reign of terror which held Addis Ababa from early Saturday, when Emperor Haile Selassie fled into exile, until the Fascist forces arrived.

Even until yesterday, the business section and some outlying districts of the town were still partly in the hands of brigands, with the American legation one focal point of attack.

Italian troops, weary after three days of forced marching which preceded their occupation, sent half a company of native troops to the American legation late Tuesday night in time to help beat off the second direct attack in three days on the mission.

British Ask Aid Going to the aid of Americans who re-occupied the legation after the Fascist occupation killed three Ethiopians and cleared the quarter which was one of the most dangerous during the native looting and burning.

Ethiopians said Haile Selassie himself prompted the natives to pillage the city, rather than leave possessions for the Italians.

Women's Republican School Of Politics Held Two Meetings

During the two sessions of the School of Politics, held by the Republican Educational League of New York state, Mrs. Harry B. Walker, president of the Kingston Women's Republican Club, presiding.

Very valuable information relative to the condition and future of the nation was given to the women and in the evening to the men and women present at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The school itself was exceedingly valuable as refreshing the minds of those present as to fundamental political matters necessary for intelligent voters to know, but the outstanding and decidedly outstanding feature of the entire event was the address in the evening given by Mrs. Henry R. Caraway of Carmel, president of the Women's National Republican Club in New York.

Mrs. Caraway speaks.

It was prefaced in the afternoon by a talk which Mrs. Caraway gave on the conditions leading up to the present state of mind of the world and our country and therefore giving a cogent reason for many of the votes given to Franklin D. Roosevelt, electing him President of the United States.

Mrs. Caraway, who is a very direct, informed and forceful speaker, presenting her subject with extreme clarity, told of the federal government's spilling a perfectly good and very long, restful and artistic sweep of greensward leading down to Glendora from the court house at Carmel, her home, by "decorating" it with shrubbery, etc. in order to spend money in Putnam county even though the "improvement" was not wanted, plunged into the subject of the mental and moral infection of the peoples of the world following the World War. She termed it a "mental epidemic." Throughout England and the European continent there had developed an insidious and growing desire for centralization of government as though some sort of devastating germ had been doing its deadly work. Dictators came to be the order of the day; Stalin in Russia; Mussolini in Italy; Hitler in Germany.

While keeping the condition with distress we kept saying here in these United States, "It can't happen here." In a republic with our constitutional government. To us it was unpredictable and never for a moment envisioned because it was apart from the whole background of our national experience. Yet what has happened here is the outgrowth of that dictatorship germ and the following depression, and Mrs. Caraway stated very definitely that we were not responsible for the depression. We as a nation had been feeding and clothing the entire world and our own world as well, reaching the highest peak of productivity on farms, in industry, and in business. During the World War all tried rules were thrown out. Our market reached its highest point and every man and every woman who were not actually fighting in the war were forcing themselves to give the world every commodity it wanted. What was more, having the money, we gained as a people speculated and spent wildly, not considering the possibility of a day of reckoning.

However, in all this unthinking riot of earning and spending there (Continued on Page 12)

Value of conservation work done by the Civilian Conservation Corps was estimated at $578,000,000 by Robert Fechner, director of the work, in testimony before a House appropriations sub-committee.

A report of hearings on the deficiency appropriation bill issued today indicated that between April 3, 1935, and February 1, 1936, nearly 1,859,000 men were given employment by the CCC.

Fechner told the committee CCC enrollees sent approximately $240,000,000 to their dependent families.

The line of march for Troy's annual May 30 parade winds up a steep hill. For this season Joseph F. Tinsley, a member of Marcus D. Russell Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, led the movement to withdraw from the parade. Tinsley pointed out that 38 years have passed since the war that freed Cuba, and that the average age of the Spanish War Veteran is 64.

3 Men Are Killed When Train Explodes

Batavia, N. Y., May 7 (AP).—A locomotive exploded on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad south of here today and three men were killed.

The accident happened a mile east of North Alexander station, about six miles south of here, about mid-forenoon.

Station Master Bert Coulter of North Alexander said the bodies of the engineer, the fireman and the head trainman had been found, all "pretty badly mangled."

The division superintendent's office in Buffalo said their records showed the engineer was Stephen Hasfurter of Buffalo, with Oscar Arthur of Elmira as fireman and E. F. Arwine of Elmira as head trainman.

The locomotive was hauling freight and ten cars of cattle were derailed. Coulter said cattle were "running all over the countryside."

He said the locomotive was "pretty well blown up" in answering questions as to how bad the explosion was.

Tracks were blocked by derailed cars. The division superintendent's office in Buffalo said there had been no report as to the cause.

RHINELAND USED TO MARCHING TROOPS

Has Been Battlefield Periodically for 2,000 Years.

Washington.—The cadent trend of heavy Nazi army boots on the cobble picture towns in the Rhineland recently echoed around the world because of its effect upon international relations. But to many residents of those towns, history was merely repeating itself. Periodically for 2,000 years the Rhineland has been a battlefield.

"The Rhineland's location, its productive soil, its mines, and above all its Rhine, have made it Germany's 'Main Street' and 'Promised Land' rolled up into one 10,000 square miles," says the National Geographic society.

"Small wonder that many have coveted it. Caesar crossed the Rhine as well as the Rubicon. Attila the Hun disturbed its peace, and Clovis fought along its banks. Charlemagne established the capital of his empire at Aachen in the Rhineland. Napoleon's regiments swept triumphantly through. Pursuing the double eagles of the Hohenzollerns went the French Tricolor in 1818. And now the Swastika waves from bridges, fortresses, medieval town halls, and domer windows of quaint peaked houses.

Garrisoned by Americans.

"A list of the flags which have flown in the Rhineland would not be complete without the Stars and Stripes. For four years a garrison of Americans kept the 'Wacht am Rhein' at Germany's Gibraltar the old fortress of Ehrenbreitstein opposite Koblenz (Coblenz).

"The Rhineland, now transformed from a demilitarized into a danger zone, embraces the territory west of the Rhine up to the boundaries of France, Belgium, and the Netherlands, and a 50-kilometer (31-mile) strip along the east bank. This is an important slice of Germany. The Rhineland, indeed, has been the dominant factor in the commerce, history, legend, music, and literature of the German people.

"Although it rises in Switzerland, empties through the Netherlands, and has lost part of its west bank to France, the Rhine is essentially a German river. It winds 800 miles from Alps to ocean, creating picturesque scenes and prosperous activity wherever it goes. From Bingen to Koblenz it pours through a steep gorge of rocky crags crowned with robber-baron's ruined castles, blown up by the French more than a century ago.

"Thereafter it broadens, bearing an increasing horde of steamers and tugs, and flows into the Netherlands as a spreading belt of greenish water almost a mile wide. Probably no other river in the world has been made to serve man more efficiently, for a system of canals and dredged channels enables it to carry a tremendous traffic of tourist steamers and barges burdened with coal, ore, and bulky freight.

Famous Towns and Cities.

"Some of Germany's greatest cities and illustrious towns are strung along the Rhine like jewels of a necklace. They include Mainz, 'the Golden' market for sparkling Rhine wine; Koblenz, with its river-side shaded promenade so familiar to many American soldiers; 'Köln (Cologne), Rhineland's metropolis, with Germany's finest Gothic cathedral which was 600 years a-building; and Düsseldorf where art flourishes beside iron, steel, and chemical works.

"One of the most famous towns of its size in the world is Heidelberg, with the oldest college in Germany. This city now is an important medical center, although patients are outnumbered by visitors who come to see the university and the restored ruins of elaborate Heidelberg castle.

"Many medieval ruins have been repaired sufficiently to serve as youth hostels for the numerous students on walking tours through the Rhineland.

"The Rhineland was for centuries the stronghold of the Franks, the virile Teutonic tribe which furnished the name and much of the population of France. Now a southern segment of the Rhineland is French territory, including the Rhineland city, Strasbourg.

Prevention of Paralysis

Is Hoped For in Test

Washington.—With disclosures of details of the recently discovered nasal spray to be used for the prevention of infantile paralysis, thousands of parents today looked to the United States public health service for initiation of tests on human beings.

A result of two years experimental work by Dr. Charles Armstrong, medical scientist of the public health service, the new solution contains picric acid, water and a pinch of salt. Thus far efficacy of the nasal spray has been tried only on monkeys.

Doctor Armstrong announced tests soon would begin on human beings. It is known the solution is harmless, but its power against infantile paralysis germs has not yet been tested.

In his report to the health service, made known recently, Doctor Armstrong revealed he had tried the solution himself and found no ill effects. He warned parents against concocting homemade solutions of the ingredients. Armstrong's theory is based on science's definite knowledge that infantile paralysis germs make their way into the human body through the nasal passages and the mouth. Picric acid, a powerful astringent, closes tightly the pores of the nasal passages.

The world is growing better. The United States Chamber of Commerce met in Washington lately with no discussion on either side.

Gold mining in Austria, which dates back to pre-historic times, may be resumed by the government as a means of providing work for unemployed miners.

Rev. W. Ralls, Hunted Since January, Under Arrest in Long Island

Former Pastor of Seventh Day Adventist Church in Kingston, Held on Charge of Abandonment at Riverhead—Pastor Said He Had "A Glorious Time."

The Rev. Walter A. Ralls, 38, who was pastor of the Seventh Day Adventists in Kingston when that religious cult erected a tabernacle on Downs street, just off Broadway, is under arrest at Riverhead, L. I., on a charge of abandonment. While in Kingston he lived on East Union street in Ponckhockie and was widely known throughout Ulster county.

The New York Herald Tribune's account of the Rev. Mr. Ralls's arrest follows:

The Rev. Walter A. Ralls, 38 years old, pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Churches of Babylon and Patchogue, who had been sought by police since he disappeared on January 16, was brought to the county jail at Riverhead this afternoon on charges of abandonment. Police discovered him on Saturday working as a handyman for a blind farmer at Linton, a suburb of Indianapolis.

On January 16, Ralls, who is married and has four children, took his mother, Mrs. Agnes E. Ralls, of Washington, to Post-Graduate Hospital, New York, to undergo treatment for pernicious anemia. He did not return that night to his home at Brightwaters, L. I., and when he continued to remain away his wife, Mrs. Lillian Ralls, notified police.

The clergyman's wife said that Mr. Ralls had suffered from a heart ailment and a nervous disorder, and she feared that he might have lost his memory. The missing man's mother died on February 2, and when he did not return after that his wife decided that he had deserted her and obtained a warrant for his arrest on a charge of abandonment. He was indicted on that charge by the April grand jury.

Had "A Glorious Time"

In jail here today Mr. Ralls said he had had "a glorious time," but admitted that he had been in the wrong. He said he would like to return to his wife, but that that was up to her.

"It's doubtful whether a woman would want to go back to a man who goes half dippy every seventeen years," he said.

According to his own story, after he had taken his mother to the hospital he bought a round-trip ticket to visit a friend, whom he would not name, near Paterson, N. J. He said he was nervous and that he had been troubled by financial worries and some theological problems, but that he had no intention of running away. There had been no friction with his wife, he said, recalling that she was preparing a special dinner for him the day he left his home. This recollection moved him to tears today.

When he reached Paterson, however, he said, the friend suggested that Mr. Ralls apparently needed a change of scene and proposed that Mr. Ralls accompany him in his car to Florida, and after some discussion, the pastor said, he agreed.

When the car reached Bristol, Tenn., however, Mr. Ralls told his friend that he was going back home, and left. Instead of returning home, however, he bought a ticket for Louisville, Ky., and wandered about that city for some time. Finally, he saw an item in an Indianapolis newspaper telling of some fine business opportunities in that city. He went there to get a job.

Writes Here For Money

Jobs were not plentiful, however.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of J. Walter Maxwell, James T. Maxwell, Jr., James T. Maxwell, Sr., John Maxwell and William Maxwell, individually and as co-partners, doing business as John Maxwell Sons Company of Saugerties, Ulster County, New York, bankrupts, case No. 4293.

To the creditors of said bankrupts: Notice is hereby given that J. Walter Maxwell and James T. Maxwell, Jr., bankrupts, individually and as co-partners doing business as John Maxwell Sons Company have applied for a discharge from all their debts. Creditors and other parties interested are ordered to attend before this Court in Room 505 in the United States Courthouse, Foley Square, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 10th day of June, 1936 at 10:30 A. M. (D. S. T.) there to show cause why discharge should not be granted.

Notice is also given that creditors who wish to oppose the bankrupts' discharge are required on the return day to enter their appearances and file specifications of objections in writing.

although he canvassed many newspaper offices, seeking work as a compositor, and he finally took the handyman's job. His money had run out and he wrote a woman friend in New York, asking for some funds to get home. The friend sent $100 to the pastor, and he bought an automobile for $50 to make the trip. He said he had intended to start today if the police had not beaten him to the punch.

Police learned of his whereabouts through the letter to the New York friend, but refused to disclose the details. Mrs. Ralls and her children are in Hagerstown, Md., visiting Mrs. Ralls's parents. They will return here for prosecution of the abandonment charge.

Mr. Ralls, it was said, formerly held pastorate in Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Kingston, N. Y.

OUR ANCESTRY

According to Dr. Wilton M. Krogman, anthropologist of Western Reserve University, we are all Asiatics.
 That is, a long way back. We originated as human beings in central Asia about 20,000,000 years ago.
 There follows, for those of us who are proud of our ancestry, something of a shock, though we are beginning to get used to such news. Our forebears in those days, says Dr. Krogman, were living in trees. Somewhere else lived their cousins, the primitive gorillas and chimpanzees.
 All had a common ancestor, of whom there is not much record. And it doesn't matter, anyway — we wouldn't have liked him.

Finally we came down to the ground and grew longer legs and shorter arms, and subsequently spread over the world. There arose a dozen variations of the original tree-man, most of which eventually perished. Our best known relatives in the last million years or so have been the Chinese or Peking man, the "Pitman" man (pre-English), the Neanderthal man, the Java man and the South African or Rhodesian man.
 Our white race is supposed to stem from the Neanderthal race, made famous in NRA day by General Johnson. From them came, a mere 250,000 years ago, our more immediate ancestors, the Cro-Magnon type of western Europe, who left the wonderful drawings in limestone caves of southern France.

All this genealogy, if you accept it, makes a person feel very old. If biologists know what they are talking about, the real beginnings of life were hundreds of millions of years before, possibly a billion. And it must have been two or three billion years ago that "the earth was waste and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep," awaiting the long, slow, patient days of creation.

AFTER NEXT WORLD WAR.

The League of Nations is obviously in a bad way. Last fall it rallied with unaccustomed strength to oppose Italy's attack on Ethiopia.
 Under British leadership it seemed about to enforce international law —
 the law of the League and the law of treaties — more effectively than this large, loose body of authority had ever been enforced before. But Mussolini proved to be strong, and Britain hedged to safeguard her own selfish interests, and punitive sanctions failed to punish severely enough, and Mussolini is getting away with his African grab.

Hitler added to the confusion by tearing up the treaty of Locarno
 along with the treaty of Versailles, and fortifying the neutralized Rhineland. Now Germany roars for colonies and threatens an eastern drive. Italy and Britain approach a clash in Africa, and Japan and Russia in Mongolia. Turkey fortifies the Dardanelles. And so it goes.

It may take another great catastrophe to bring the world to its senses. Sooner or later, if modern civilization is to survive, there will have to be some international authority to control outlaw nations.
 The present League was premature.
 It has done considerable good, but has lacked power and will. After the next World War, if there is enough strength left to do anything, perhaps the world will organize for peace — and mean it.

BOY KINGS.

Sixteen-year-old Prince Farouk, officially proclaimed King of Egypt upon the death of his father, King Fuad I, is the third boy to become king in same recent years. The others are Peter II. of Yugoslavia and Asanda of Siam. Revenues will handle the affairs of state in the three countries until the young monarchs are old enough to assume their crowns with full authority.
 Asanda of Siam is twelve in Europe because of his brother. He is only two years old and not presumably happy at his royal propects. He has said frankly that he does not wish to become a king.

 There are people in Siam who believe he never will reign there. It is thought his health cannot survive the climate. Peter of Yugoslavia, now 12 years old, went home from school in England immediately upon the death of his father. He thinks it is fun to be a king. Farouk appears older than most boys of his age. He is well educated and has been trained for kingship more thoroughly than his two child-king contemporaries. No one seems to know his personal attitude toward his new job. His father taught him one bit of wisdom which may help him later on. "It is nothing to be a Prince," said Fuad, "but it is something to be useful." Usefulness in these days is more important for a king than glamor.

STOCK MARKET WARNING.

The recent stock market plunge, not so bad as a "crash" and yet serious enough to make investors think, was probably a good thing.
 Stock prices had been shooting up to a point where they outran profits.
 That was what happened on a far bigger scale in 1928-9, when many securities were selling at prices so inflated that they represented dividends of only 2 or 3 per cent on the crest of a great business boom.
 It is never safe for stock prices to outrun current profits very far.
 That is too speculative. Such speculation, as investors should know, is full of dynamite. What to do with idle funds then? Put them into sound business and industrial investments, particularly the building industry, with special reference to home-building. Such investments, stimulating general business, should then justify stock prices.

DIZZINESS

When an attack of dizziness occurs there is often the feeling on the part of the patient that there is something wrong with his heart. As a matter of fact most cases of dizziness come from a disturbance in the ear or in the liver. Generally but not always when the objects about the patient seem to be going "around and around", or the patient himself seems to be going around and around, the trouble is in the ear; whereas when things appear to be going up and down or the patient feels that he is going up and down the liver is at fault.

When the ear is at fault, that is the part of the ear that "balances" the body, it is very often due to some trouble in the nose and the sinuses adjoining the nose. Acute or chronic catarrh, or infection of the sinuses, immediately behind the nose are the commonest causes of this dizziness, which is usually accompanied by nausea or a "tinkling" noise in the ear.

These attacks occur about once or twice a month, lasting from a few minutes to a few hours, or even for a few days.

The treatment in these cases is to look for trouble about the nose and sinuses, and if this is found and removed, the attacks disappear. Of course if fresh infection occurs, the attacks of dizziness may return.

Treatment during attacks consists of any quieting medicine such as phenobarbital. While this is the most helpful drug, there is the chance that the patients may acquire the "barbital habit".

When the attacks of dizziness cannot be prevented or controlled operation for removal of the little bones in the middle ear may be performed as these bones obstruct the outlet and prevent the removal of thickened material, which is causing the dizziness, headache and deafness.

The removal of a part of the large bone behind the ear (the mastoid) is sometimes necessary to prevent these attacks.

The attacks of dizziness due to the liver in which the objects go up and down (not around and around) are prevented or controlled by cutting down on rich starch or fat foods.
 The use of level teaspoonfuls of Exposal salts regularly for a week or ten days every month should prove helpful in this type of dizziness.

Dizziness may be due to other causes but the middle ear or the liver is to blame in most cases.

Gypsy Weather

BY MARGARET BELL HOUTON

CHAPTER I.
 HAPPY DAY

DIRK sat watching Hope. Sunday dinner, which had been usually an abstracted meal, was tonight enlivened by her presence. She sat in the place where Elmer had so often sat, and she seemed gay and at ease.

Dirk had supposed that this first appearance at the table would be an ordeal for her, that sitting opposite Rupert would inevitably try her spirits.

In this he had been mistaken. Rupert himself seemed in rather good humor, although he was drinking less than usual. His presence appeared not to disturb Hope. She seemed conscious of him, though not in the way Dirk had anticipated.

Laughing and talking with Dirk, it was plain that her smile was for Rupert, her swift dark glance.

She had been driving with Dirk most of the afternoon. He had shown her the village, and they had encircled the beautiful mountain known as the Storm King, winding through woods still in their summer green. Returning, they had gone for a stroll outside the walls of Lowrie.

on the river-side, passing the tomb of that ancient Joris lying on the embankment.

They had leaned together on the iron fence that, amid arbutus and dwarf-cedars, encircled the grave.
 Dirk read the inscription in the bronze slab that covered it, carved beneath a lion's head:

Bless you, my friend,
 Who pass in reverence by.
 My curse on you
 Who touch the place I lie.

"Like Shakespeare's epitaph," said Hope.

"The English, perhaps," agreed Dirk. "You should read the Dutch one just beneath it. It alludes to hellfire as waiting for any one who disturbs him before Judgment Day.
 Poor old great-grandfather—I don't know just how great he was—Uncle Pieter! Why couldn't he have slept with the rest of his family in Sleepy Hollow—or even inside his own wall!"

"Perhaps he liked the river too well," suggested Hope.

"I'll bet he hated the railroad down there. You notice when they cut into the slope to build it they spared Uncle Pieter."

Hope said she didn't blame them.
 She would have spared Uncle Pieter, too.

"Well, there was some argument,
 I understood. But even corporations have their qualms. Uncle Pieter's epitaph... Don't go too near the edge there. The cedars hide it. You might go over."

"It wouldn't be much of a tumble," discovered Hope. She had parted the cedars to look at the river, its far sapphire sweep and tranquil bosom.

They went down rock steps and strolled at its edge, facing a wind, faintly salty, coming in from the sea.
 The wind died, and the sun went down—deep down into the river, dyeing it vermilion. The sail-boats, moving into the arc of the sunset, became pointed flames. Presently everything was mauve and misty lights blossomed on the Jersey shore.

HOPE, Dirk learned, was going to remain at Lowrie. Rupert had said so, had given her a check, and told her to buy herself proper clothes, the clothes his wife should wear. All this she told him as they walked in the sunset.

Clothes, she no doubt felt, were matters of importance to Rupert, for coming home, she had changed her dress again, had put on this frock of embroidered muslin, with a dahlia from the piano at her waist. Her curls had a gloss as from much brushing, and she had rouged her lips with a certain skill.

What had passed between them, wondered Dirk. The chances were that Rupert had meant to send the girl away; then, hearing how Elmer had predicted she would leave of her own accord, had accepted the challenge, and permitted her to stay.

Dirk had relayed Elmer's remark to Rupert with the suspicion that he would do just that. It was part of his own unrelenting efforts to protect Hope, to keep her in the house.
 Something dark and strange rankled in him. He was conscious of other feelings, of desires at war with his own efforts.

Had he not been obscurely hoping,

when he went searching for her this morning, that Rupert had indeed thrown her out? He had meant to find her, wherever the search might take him, but with the hope that she would say, "I have no friend but you..."

Rupert and Hope had risen. Dirk laid a hand on Hope's chair, followed her from the room. Rupert spoke to him in the hall as Hope went into the library.

"I've got to go over the papers of the Dunbar case," he said. "It's coming up in White Plains tomorrow, and I'll be there all day. I'm wondering if you will mind taking..."

He glanced toward the library, and Dirk supplied the name with a smile.

"Hope."

"I wonder if you will mind taking her to lunch. It needn't be out of your way... say to the Lawyers' Club. She'll be at the bank tomorrow, and shopping."

No explanation of his solicitude.
 No reference to his change of mood.

"Glad to," said Dirk.

"Tomorrow evening," suggested Rupert, "you might get Isabel and I'll go somewhere for dinner. I suppose there's nothing at the theater yet."

"There's the opening of 'The Black Swan,'" offered Dirk. "Ernest Webb's new play. Ernest sent Gage
 Seymour seats, and Elmer asked Isabel and me to have dinner with them, and go along. I'm not tied, however."

"I'd go," Rupert answered. "You like Ernest."

He went upstairs, and Dirk joined Hope in the library. She was looking over the books, old, old volumes, some of them, bound in calf and morocco. Their shelves reached halfway to the ceiling. A fire burned on the hearth, and a bowl of chrysthemums was on the table.

There was the strange warm feeling of a woman in the house. Even the servants felt it, and had paid the involuntary homage of flowers and a fire. Or had Rupert ordered these?

HOPE glanced about, and Dirk said:

"Rupert's gone up. Had some papers to go through."

He added, half-sitting against the table, watching her in her pale dress, against the shadowy background of old books.

"He'll be out of town tomorrow.
 Says I may take you to lunch, and specifies the place."

"Where?" she asked with interest.

"Lawyer's Club, so that I won't run too far afield. Prosaic, but near the office. All right?"

"All right," she smiled. "And will you show me the office?"

He promised, and carried to the couch a book she had extracted from the shelves. It was the "History of the Joris Family," a huge and ancient tome, bound in pigskin. He reversed her taste, for few had shown the inclination to delve into its labyrinth of fine, uneven print, its dull, old-fashioned prose.

She was looking, however, at the pictures.

"Tell me about them," she said.
 And Dirk sat down beside her, and told her what he knew, turning the yellow pages.

There were square Dutch burgomasters, and their squarer wives.
 There was a duke in a black hat with a red plume. There was his duchess, wearing pearls and a gathered velvet gown. Rembrandt had painted them, and they hung in the dining-room. There was a crest, a three-masted ship, sails unfurled, possions flying.

She paused at a woodcut of Jan
 Steen's portrait of Croon Joris. Dirk wondered if she saw the ressemblance to Rupert. She said nothing, and he turned the page.

"Here's the ancestor who built this house. Myrher Hans Joris.
 Doesn't he look shrewd and twinkling? Frightful old smuggler he was, but most respected. And here's the "Onrust," the Restless. A boat big enough to go on the ocean. First product of skilled labor on Manhattan Island. They say the phlegmatic Dutch actually cheered as she slid down the ways."

"Was Uncle Pieter there, do you suppose?"

"No. Too early for Uncle Pieter.
 Did his grave wake your interest in the family?"

"I shouldn't wonder. His wanting to lie out there all by himself. He looked at the firm. 'Some of us have to be alone. But not many of us want to be.'"

She was smiling now. Her eyes came back to the book. "Here's a crest," she said. "A helmet is pre-tie."

MODES OF THE MOMENT

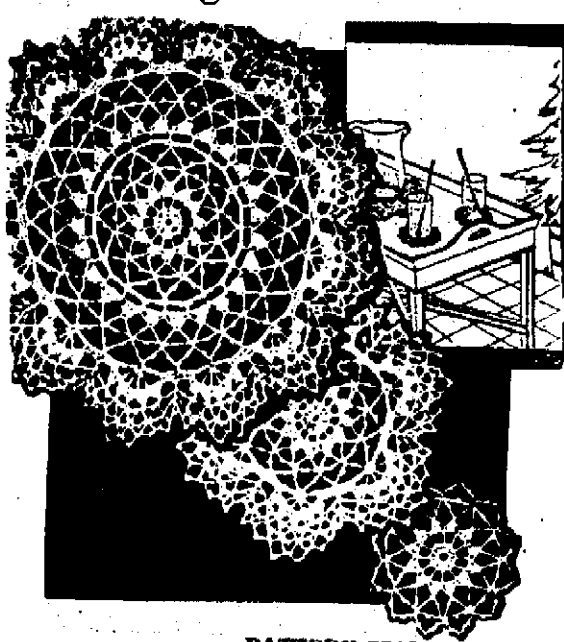

Smart, printed chintz finds greater things to do this season, for instead of being confined to drapery uses in home decoration it is fashioning some of the most delightful dinner and evening gowns for summer's dressy occasions. In their quest for something unusual and effective, style designers have adapted this very cool and charming fabric to the evening picture with admirable success.

This smart double-duty jacket-formal uses glazed chintz in floral pattern, an aqua colored design on a black background. The same model also was shown in other combinations of leather brown, gold or rose with aqua.

The full skirted gown has a flattering high waistline, a V-front neckline and low strap back décolletage while aqua grosgrain fashions the inconspicuous belt. Dinner jackets which accompany these formal gowns are usually brief—just enough to transform a definitely formal style into a charming costume for dinner, cocktail, dance or other semi-formal evening affairs.

Mental Healing of Poor for First Time

St. Louis, May 7 (AP).—Mental healing of the poor for the first time by mass psychoanalysis, a new application of Freudianism, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association here today by Paul Schilder, M. D., of Bellevue Hospital, New York city.

Hitherto, he said, only the wealthy have been able to afford psychoanalysis. He applied it to the poor and the impoverished by psychoanalyzing them in school room fashion, giving them in groups Sigmund Freud's way of discussing censored thought and dreams.

The results of 51 cases so treated, he said, were 11 apparently cured, 16 improved and 24 unrelieved. All were mental cases, some severe, others mild.

Each one had a private interview before joining the class. Men and women were kept in separate classes, but Dr. Schilder said ultimately he hopes to use the coeducational technique.

IMPROVING YOUR ENGLISH

What a friend and what an enemy—our speech can be! It makes strangers accept us in spite of shabby clothes or humble beginnings. Or it marks us as well-meaning nobodies, no matter how we try to please.

There's Cleo, in our sketch, striving to be pleasant to her new neighbor, Mrs. Archer. Such a charming, cultivated woman. Cleo will be bitterly sorry if they don't become friends. Yet what is she saying to the astonished stranger?

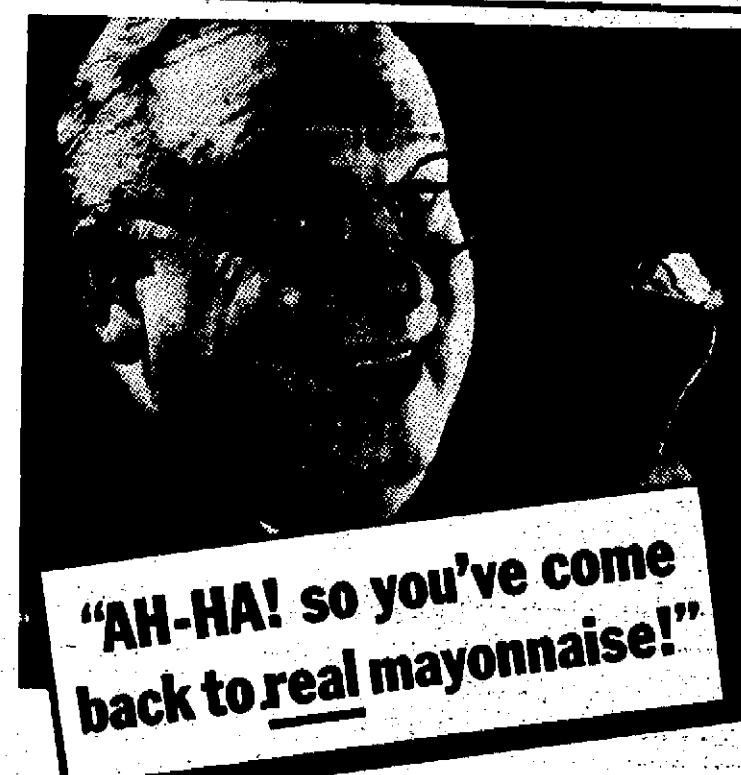

"I live just ACROST the street from you, so I FIGURED we OUGHTA get acquainted, I twitters Cleo. 'Sure, I'll ACCEPT OF a cup of tea. I like tea any time and ANYWHERE. I used to drink it UNBEKNOWN to my mother when I was a KID."

All very well meant. But how can Mrs. Archer ever invite Cleo to meet her cultivated and polished friends. Cleo simply "won't do" as long as she uses incorrect English.

How strange that many girls who wouldn't wear an old checked gingham apron out on the street will cling to speech habits twice as offensive and out of place as the dingy apron!

It's just a matter of will and persistence to become a good talker. Our 40-page illustrated booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, will point out to you elipses you might not notice for yourself. A few minutes a day of practice will give your speech distinction, and no longer let Cleo. "Sure, I'll ACCEPT OF a cup of tea. I like tea any time and ANYWHERE. I used to drink it UNBEKNOWN to my mother when I was a KID."

Send 15c for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your Name, Address, and Name of book-let.

"I KNEW my wife'd stop foolin' around with ordinary dressings! Nothing can give you the rich, full flavor and goodness you get from real mayonnaise—Hellmann's!"

That's because Hellmann's is made only from the finest ingredients... choice salad oil, freshly-broken eggs, a specially selected vinegar, and imported spices. All double-whipped for creamy smoothness!

Why not see for yourself the difference real mayonnaise makes in salads? Ask for Hellmann's. It is so good... yet costs but a trifle per serving.

HELLMANN'S REAL MAYONNAISE

Coolidge Household Furnishings on Sale

Northampton, Mass., May 7 (AP).—Household furnishings of the late President Calvin Coolidge were placed on the auction block today.

Stocky bald-headed George Bean, auctioneer, to whom Coolidge's widow, Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, entrusted selling of the household effects, hired the Smith College crowd to assist, eager to possess Coolidge memorabilia.

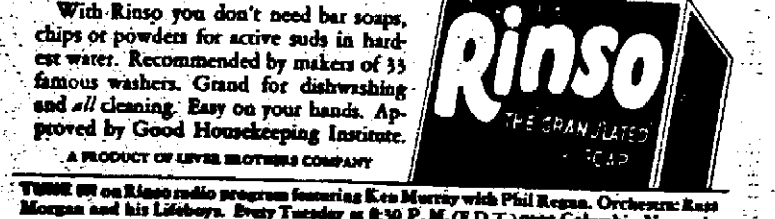

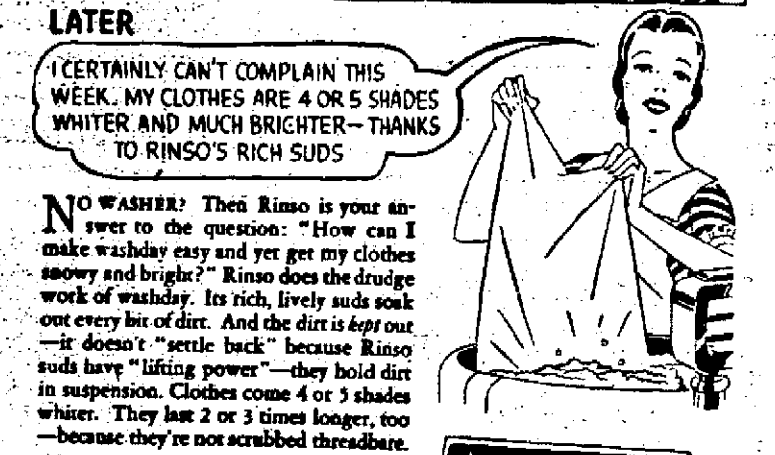

To those acquainted with his career 400-odd articles pointed the trail the 30th president took from a Vermont farm to the White House.

For the black and white articles Coolidge used as a student at Amherst College and inexpensive but sturdy study tables and chairs from the now famous two-family house on Massachusetts street where the young lawyer and the attractive school teacher set up house-keeping.

Awaiting the bidder, too, were more recent landmarks in the former president's life—books and curios and ornate vases he brought back here with him from the White House, and solid, mahogany furniture from his last home, "The Beeches."

Mrs. Coolidge is traveling in Europe now.

"RIO" GOLD MINE LEGEND SUSTAINS 40-YEAR HUNT

Fort Davis, Tex. (A)—The legend of the Lost Nigger gold mine continues to live.

Robert C. Withers recently gave a ride to a hitch-hiking Mexican who said he had been hunting for three months along the Rio Grande for the mine and was returning to Pecos for another grubstake.

The legend dates back 40 years when a negro cowpuncher, working for the Reagan outfit, left one morning and didn't return for days.

He brought back some gold nuggets and the tale of finding a gold mine. It was never relocated.

F. C. A. Agencies Stay on the Job

Ithaca, N. Y., May 7.—No retirement of the cooperative Farm Credit Administration agencies from the farm financing field need be expected, says W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, in a statement from Washington.

"The emergency program of lending government money to refinance farm debts is almost finished," Myers says, "but the cooperative agencies, like the land banks and the production credit associations, are intended to be permanent and they will continue to go forward with farm lending in any section where there is a need and a basis for such credit."

"The second mortgage debt refinancing of the Land Bank Commissioner is passing out of the picture and the emergency short-term loans made during the depression are steadily being liquidated, which means a lessening need for government money lending to farmers. But the cooperative agencies making loans with investors' funds are increasing their volume of new loans."

"A much larger proportion of Federal land bank loans is going to purchase farms and for other normal financing purposes, while the money supplied for current farm operations by the production credit associations last year was double the 1934 figure and loans this year are running twenty per cent ahead of 1935."

"Production credit loans outstanding reached a new high peak of $114,000,000 at April 1 this year, and the fact that more farmers are now able to qualify for these secured short-term loans is one of the most striking signs in the improvement in agricultural conditions this spring as contrasted with previous seasons."

VOTE RE-COUNTERS FIND A KITTEN AMONG BALLOTS

Waukegan, Ill. (A)—Judge Perry L. Persons and Bailiff Albert Weinberger heard strange noises coming from the court vault in which were locked primary election ballots, held for a recount.

When the six principals of the recount, State Attorney Charles E. Mason and County Clerk Russ Alford were called to court, the judge signed an order to open the vault. Six keys were inserted in six padlocks and the vault door swung open. Out stumbled a black kitten which had been locked in three days previously.

ATTENTION FORD, PLYMOUTH, CHEVROLET OWNERS!

10,391
MOTORISTS
TOLD US:
"I average 16.2 miles per gallon from any of the other regular gasolines I've tried."

CERTIFIED ROAD TESTS PROVE:
"Plymouths, Fords and Chevrolets using Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline can average 21.9 miles per gallon!"

THRIFTY MOTORISTS CAN SAVE $24.48 A YEAR!

If you drive a Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth here are some facts that will open your eyes—and put money in your pocket! We talked to 10,391 motorists in this and neighboring states. We asked them just two questions: "What gasoline are you using now?" "How many miles do you average per gallon?" Those 10,391 drivers told us they average 16.2 miles to the gallon. They felt they should get more mileage, but the gasolines they were using wouldn't give it to them.

SO WE MADE THIS TEST:

We went to a certified public accountant. He came with us as we filled the tanks of stock Fords, Plymouths and Chevrolets with regular-priced Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline, bought at a regular Richfield station. He checked the tests made with these cars under ordinary road conditions. And you have his certified proof that they averaged 21.9 miles per gallon!

SEE WHAT YOU SAVE!

Compare Richfield Hi-Octane average of 21.9 miles per gallon with the 16.2 miles you average from other gasolines and figure it out for yourself. Say you drive your Ford, Plymouth or Chevrolet an average of 8,500 miles a year. Using other gasolines, you'd need 524 gallons during the year. Using Richfield you'd need only 388 gallons—a difference of 136 gallons. Take 18c a gallon (including tax) as the average price for gasoline during the past six months and figure the dollar-and-cents difference. If you agree that $24.48 a year is worth saving, test Richfield Hi-Octane in your car today! Prove to yourself that Richfield in your tank puts cash savings in your pocket!

HAROLD B. BARNETT
January 6, 1936

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have supervised mileage tests on Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline. These tests involved the use of Richfield Hi-Octane bought from a Richfield service station in three new stock cars—Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth. The results of these tests show that the average mileage per gallon obtained by these cars from Richfield Hi-Octane was twenty-one and nine-tenths (21.9) miles.

Yours very truly,
Harold B. Barnett
Certified Public Accountant

FUEL SAVING FACTS ABOUT RICHFIELD

1. Richfield Hi-Octane contains more potential power per gallon.
2. It was developed especially for modern high-compression motors.
3. Richfield "flashes" faster—saves on every "cold" start.
4. No gasoline at its price has a higher octane (anti-knock) rating.
5. Richfield exceeds the highest U. S. Government specifications for "emergency" fuel.

BIGGER SAVINGS FOR BIG CAR OWNERS!

It stands to reason that Richfield's extra mileage means extra savings for big car owners. Fire departments, taxicab and trucking companies know that. It's the dollars-and-cents reason why they use Richfield Hi-Octane!

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Daniel C. Roper

(By The Associated Press) Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper is the recognized political veteran of President Roosevelt's cabinet.

For the past year, with the latest production statistics on his tongue's end, he skillfully has told bankers, manufacturers and merchants that the country is "well on the road to complete business recovery."

His precise way of speaking and conservative manner of championing the "New Deal" have made him the "New Deal's" foremost missionary among business groups. He will, as usual, continue to spread the message of peace and goodwill to the industrial centers as the campaign warms up.

Since he left the South Carolina legislature in 1924 he has moved shuttle-like among government departments in Washington, picking up experience, gathering college degrees, board memberships and club affiliations.

Kingston Will Have Academy of Fine Arts

Endorsed by Leading Figures in Art World and of Kingston—Soss and Zaven Melik Will Be Instructors.

For the very first time in Kingston the long anticipated branch of education is now available to those desirous to develop their talents along drawing and painting.

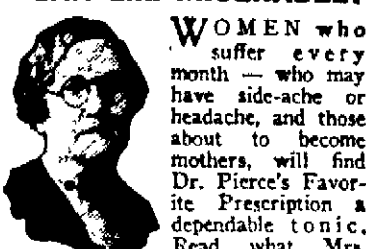

For a long period of time there have been in this city a great number of studios for instruction in piano, violin, organ and other instruments; an equal number of schools for all branches of dancing as well as numerous classes for the training and development of the voice, but never yet has there been here a systematic and disciplined art academy, imparting to students the regular, academic course in the fine arts.

There has been much anxiety expressed on the absence of an art school in this city, giving rise to requests to establish upon solid foundation the true academic system, the only reliable and correct approach to both drawing and painting. In consequence, various receptions were held in the city and the possibilities extensively considered. The unanimous decision of educators and parents invariably led to the conclusion that it would be difficult to find a combination of instructors more competent in this field than Soss Melik, noted portrait painter, and Zaven Melik, for preliminary, intermediate and advanced courses in fine arts.

The hopes of those desirous to pursue serious study of drawing and painting, either as a hobby or a profession, terminated at last Friday when the final reception was held at the Melik studios at 30 South Clinton avenue, at which time both artists consented to give instruction. Zaven Melik supervising the classes in theory and practice while Soss Melik be reserved for general guidance, individual criticisms, explanations on the principles of painting, analyses of the old masters and a thoroughly rounded appreciation of art.

These explanations will follow each lesson and be given in a simplified and clear manner so as to be understood and enjoyed by the youngest in the classes, though in value bearing the pattern of the regular academy or a university dissection. The primary object is to impart a higher level of artistic education in conjunction with the actual practice, both equally essential to the ambitious student.

Soss Melik's earliest education in art was received from his father followed by that of the traditional Academy in New York, where, after but three years, he was honored with the coveted Ella Mooney Fellowship, the academy gold medal prize of $500 to travel abroad as well as the honorable invitation to the Tiffany Foundation at Oyster Bay. Soss Melik was a personal pupil of the Hon. H. W. Watrous, emeritus president of the National Academy, and also for several years was the protégé of the great Zakharov. He received his first recognition as a portrait painter in New York city in 1932 and proclaimed by Cass Gilbert as the "Young Sargent."

Among the sitters for the Kingston artist were, Feodor Chaliapin, the basso, Max Panteleff, director of the Russian Grand Opera Co.; Dr. William Henry Welsh of Johns Hopkins, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Co.; Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, late chancellor of New York University; Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, noted anthropologist and director of the American Museum of Natural History; H. G. Wells, the British historian, and other men and women prominent in civic and private life of our time.

Zaven Melik, though associated with concert singing, is a painter as well, represented by seven canvases at the National Museum in Armenia and various private collections in this country. For years, like his brother, he received his training under Watrous and Zakharov, and has since been closely associated with the work and methods of Soss Melik.

The combination of both instructors will constitute an excellent art school as predicted by the recent endorsement issued from the offices of the emeritus president of the National Academy, reading:

For some years I have been personally interested in the artistic development of the two Melik brothers. Zaven, the older, has a baritone voice of rare quality well trained. Soss, the younger, is one of the outstanding figures in the history of the National Academy and the winner of the Mooney Scholarship. He is a superb portrait painter, and with their thorough training, both should be excellent teachers.

Amidst the vast collection of congratulatory messages and official endorsements from many parts of the country, outstanding is the letter from Holger Cahill addressed to the director of the school:

Washington, D. C.
April 6, 1936

Dear Zaven Melik,

I think it would be an excellent idea to open an art academy in Kingston and to have your brother, Soss Melik, assist you. It seems to me that your plan is in every way

The school will be known as the Melik Academy of the Fine Arts and is situated at 30 South Clinton avenue, where an entire upper floor of spacious classrooms will be devoted to this purpose. It will be open to everyone, regardless of age or any apparent talents and primarily to those with a desire to study drawing and painting in a systematic way and under constant supervision.

The courses will rise gradually from their very beginning, step by step, much in the same manner as the careful study of musical notes, so as to give the student a correct vision of objects and the firm foundation to work independently and with definite self assurance. Care will be exercised that at each lesson every student receives individual attention from both teachers for a more rapid advancement.

The classrooms are fully equipped with easels, casts, boards and materials as in any highly qualified art school to leave for the student no anxiety whatever as to such necessities. The school will begin at 7:30 o'clock in the evening until 10, three evenings a week, on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The students may attend as many school evenings as desired, according to personal convenience.

Also there will be a special class for children under 14 years of age. Parents who are eager to enroll their children can have them registered only on Monday evening of each week at the school. Parents are extended the courtesy of attending the junior class to witness the methods applied in instructing their children.

The courses will include a most fascinating and thorough training in textile designing and the creating from plain white silk such decorative and useful articles as scarfs and ornamental tapestries. Imported Bachmeier dye and Chinese wax will be employed in these processes of the batik.

The fees by the lesson or by the course have been so arranged as to be within the economic reach of anyone, which eliminates the necessity of living in New York, Philadelphia, Boston or other art centers to study art at much higher tuition. The incredibly modest tuition, by the lesson or by the course, in return for the benefits derived, is one of the most gratifying features of the academy.

Complete information can be obtained at the academy itself on 30 South Clinton avenue or by phone 2136-R.

meritorious and I wish you every success with it.

Very sincerely yours,
HOLGER CAHILL,
Director of the United States Federal Art Projects.

Outstanding among the approvals and endorsements from Kingston, is the following letter from the Hon. G. D. B. Hasbrouck, reading:

April 25, 1936

Dear Zaven Melik,
I am very appreciative of your concern for the cultural development of the youth of our city in attempting with your brother, Soss Melik, to set up a systematic and disciplined art academy here. I appreciate that if its efforts have the direction of such artists as yourself and your brother, Soss Melik, students will be well guided along proper channels of acquiring the fundamental principles in art, in drawing and painting. Kingstonians ought to have profound sympathy with your project and to wish you success in your enterprise.

With assurance of my high regards,

Sincerely yours,
G. D. B. HASBROUCK.

On behalf of the city, the Mayor of Kingston greets the opening of the art academy in the following misgiving:

April 22, 1936

My dear Zaven Melik,
I am delighted to learn that you and Soss have decided to open a school of art in this city. It is entirely appropriate that we should do everything possible to stimulate and encourage the cultural life of our city. If Soss is as successful teaching painting as he is efficient in execution, you should have a tremendous success. My best wishes go to both of you.

Very truly yours,
CONRAD J. HEISELMAN.

Speaking to the youth of the city, the principal of Kingston High School sends his personal appreciation:

April 21, 1936

Dear Sir:
I have gone over your plans relative to the formation of an art academy with considerable interest. They appear to me to be very commendable. What our community needs is worthwhile, constructive activity. For a certain percentage of our young people who are so inclined, it seems to me this art academy will supply a very definite activity. I wish you the best of success in this venture.

Very truly yours,
CLARENCE DUMM

CHURCH CLUB TO PRESENT

MOCK TRIAL TONIGHT

Another unusual happening will take place tonight at the Christadelphian meeting at the Elmwood Presbyterian Church hall. First of all there will be a business meeting of great importance to all members, then a mock trial will be staged. All of the talent for this presentation is strictly amateur. The cast for the trial is as follows: Judge, Irwin Thomas; Attorney General, Don Van Gasterbeck; Attorney for the Defense, Bob Christman; Sergeant at Arms, Earl Slichter; Defendant, (John Howard), taken by Ben Storm; Witnesses, Mary Robinson and Marie Hile, taken by Edwina Schultz and Eleonora Burger, respectively; Tony Melinovich (John Howard's chauffeur), by Doug Tyler, and Court Clerk by Bill Shiele. The remainder of the club will be jurists, deciding the fate of the accused, John Howard. The trial will begin immediately following the club's business session. All members and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

Wicks' Measure to Regulate Practice of Opticians Defeated

Albany, May 7 (Special)—The Senate has defeated, by a vote of 22 to 22, the bill of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, amending the Education law, to regulate the practice of opticians, and creating in the State Education Department a state board of opticians.

It is expected, however, that Senator Wicks will again try to have his bill passed, inasmuch as only 4 votes more would have been necessary to secure its passage, and seven senators were absent when the vote was taken on the measure.

Under provisions of the Wicks bill, the proposed optician board would consist of 5 members, one of whom shall be a duly licensed eye physician or surgeon known as an oculist or ophthalmologist, and who shall have specialized in the treatment of the eyes and vision for a period of not less than 5 years. The remaining 4 members of the board "shall have been actually engaged exclusively in dispensing pursuant to prescription, for lenses, optical instruments or devices for a period of not less than 5 years preceding the date of their appointment."

Appointment of the board shall be by the State Board of Regents from an eligible list of 12 names, 8 of which are to be submitted by the guild of prescription opticians of Greater New York, and 4 of which shall be ophthalmologists submitted by the New York State Medical Society. Terms of office of the board members shall be for 3 years, and salaries are to be fixed by the Education Department.

It shall be the duty of the board, under Senator Wicks' measure, to provide for the licensing of opticians, and for the conduct and inspection of optician schools for the instruction of opticians, and to establish reasonable standards of experience and character required to entitle any person to receive a license. All persons who are over the age limit of 21 years, and who are and have been actively engaged as opticians for 5 years at the time the act takes effect, shall automatically be given licenses, without examination.

The fee for an original license would be $10, and for each annual re-registration, $5.

GOODYEAR ALL-TRACTION TIRE FOR THE TRACTOR

A new tire combination that finally permits the farmer to get maximum efficiency from his farm machinery is taking the country by storm, according to Bert Wilde, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"This new combination is the Goodyear All Tractor tire for tractors and the brand new Goodyear implement tire for all rolling farm implements," Mr. Wilde explained.

"The Goodyear tractor tire brought out several months ago has proved in actual use on thousands of farms throughout the country that it offers far more traction than previous tires of that type. Reasons for this are easy to see when it is explained that the newly-designed lug bars and heavy diamonds are deeper and sharper. More shoulder tread gives better traction on hillsides, too, and the new tread cleans itself 30 per cent better. More than 30 per cent extra draw bar pull is given by the tire.

"The companion tire the new Goodyear implement tire is especially designed for all drawn implements. Goodyear some time ago foresaw the need for a special tire for implements, realizing the demands on this sort of tire are entirely different than those imposed on tires used primarily on tractors. The implement tire permits easy rolling and prevents side slip, and for the first time enables the farmer to really take full advantage of the added speed flexibility and efficiency which the air tire has given his tractor."

One of the strangest notions now mulling up a cock-eyed world is the patriotic conviction that if any nation chooses to produce more people than it can take care of at home they're a right to go out and occupy any other nation's property that looks good to them.

It's always safe to refer to "economic laws" in an argument, because the other fellow doesn't know anything about 'em either.

I bring HYGIENIC cleanliness into your home!

Health authorities emphasize the great need for home hygiene. In every home there are "danger zones" which menace health, unless modern cleansing methods are used. Clorox has established a higher standard of household hygiene in millions of homes because of its positive germ-killing power. Why take chances when it is so easy and economical to use Clorox and give your home the health protection it deserves!

CLOROX PROTECTS—it disinfects and deodorizes. But these are only two of the many values of Clorox. In your regular laundering process it bleaches white cottons and linens to a sparkling-whiteness—dinginess, yellowness and ordinary stains disappear. In a slightly stronger Clorox solution such stubborn stains as ink, fruit, berry, beverage, medicine, blood—even scorch and mildew—are easily removed. Your laundry is made brighter, fresh-smelling and sanitary. . . . In the kitchen and bathroom Clorox solves many housekeeping problems. . . . Clorox also has many important personal uses.

There are twenty years of manufacturing experience and laboratory control back of every bottle of Clorox. The concentrated, uniform strength of Clorox assures economical and uniform results. Read the tested directions on the label—they are a guide to hygienic cleanliness and easier housekeeping. Always order Clorox by name. There is only one

Europe's Sweep Of Africa Ends With Italy's Ethiopian Conquest

Italian conquest of Ethiopia ends a lengthy chapter of African history which has seen the entire continent, with the exception of tiny Liberia, a republic fostered by the United States, pass into the control of European powers. The map above tells the story.

The Phoenicians founded Carthage about 800 B. C., and 200 years later, Greece founded Cyrene. Three hundred years later, Alexander the Great marched to the Nile and left his name to a new city, Alexandria. Home capped these European excursions into Africa by consolidating the northern part of the continent after the fall of Carthage in 146 B. C.

Arabs, in the seventh century, swept the Romans out of control. Nine hundred years later the Turks supplanted the Arabs, but land-hungry Europeans would not be denied. Vasco da Gama, the Portuguese, led the vanguard of European explorers and traders, when he sailed around southern Africa in 1498. He was followed closely by English, Spanish, Dutch, French and Danes.

Rival powers soon began seizing territory. European holdings at the outbreak of the World War ranked as follows: British, French, German, Belgian, Portuguese, Turkish, Italian, Spanish, Independent territory, including Ethiopia and Liberia, comprised less than one-twentieth of the continent. Germany's colonies went to the Allies as the result of the World War.

The outbreak of the Ethiopian war found Africa divided as follows: Britain, 4,334,000 square miles; France, 4,200,000; Belgium, 930,000; Portugal, 788,000; Italy, 680,000; Ethiopia (Independent), 350,000; Spain, 140,000; Liberia (Independent), 40,000.

ed as the expedition's cost, Osgood said, Italy gains nothing that can be turned into money "without a tremendous further investment."

But Ethiopia does hold one sinister possibility, Osgood added, explaining that Italy could equip and train there a mighty native army.

"In my opinion, it is entirely likely," the Field Museum official said in an interview, "that it is planned to give these troops guns and send them into the Sudan, and then on to Egypt."

To move into Anglo-Egyptian Sudan would be an invasion of Great Britain's empire.

To realize on its new African assets by any peaceable plan would take Italy "at least five or ten years," Osgood estimated.

"There is some very fine farming country, much like Central Mexico, and eminently suitable for Italian colonization," he said.

"But it is a wild country, and to install communications and otherwise develop it will cost many millions. That remains to be done even after the Italians consolidate their position, build their garrisons and landing fields and put themselves in position to police the country."

He declared his own "tours of Ethiopia convinced him it had few assets except its soil. Osgood said he believed the country had little or no oil.

AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PAYMENTS START ON FRIDAY

The first opportunity for farmers to fill out work sheets for participation in the Agricultural Conservation program will be offered at two points in Ulster county on Friday, May 5. These will be at the Bruynswick Church Community Hall in Bruynswick and the Accord Farmers' Cooperative in Accord. Representatives of the County Agricultural Conservation agent will be at these places between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., to assist farmers in filling out the work sheets.

Fred DuBois, County Agricultural Conservation agent, wishes to have it emphasized that the work sheet must be filled out for anyone to later qualify and apply for the payments being made through the program. It is planned to have the Agricultural Conservation office open at 74 John street in Kingston on Monday, May 11, where farmers can also go to fill out the work sheets or get further information on the conservation program.

All Ulster County farmers are eligible to participate in the diversion and soil improvement practice payments, providing that they carry out the specified practices and requirements. Many of the practices such as the application of lime and superphosphate on new seedlings or pastures, may have already been carried out. Some of them may be planned for this fall. In both cases the individuals can still qualify for the payments. If the minimum amounts have been applied.

During the next three or four weeks ample opportunity will be given every farmer in Ulster county to fill out the work sheet for participation in the program.

ESCAPED FIRING SQUAD STARTS CAREER AS LAWYER

Jackson, Miss., May 7 (AP)—Benjamin J. Doty, 36, who escaped a French Foreign Legion firing squad 10 years ago, started his career as a lawyer at the Mississippi bar today.

Hi-Y Was Host to Faculty at Y. M. C. A.

One hundred Hi-Y students and teachers made merry last evening at the Y. M. C. A. at the annual Hi-Y faculty banquet. The principal part of the program was held around the banquet tables where there was spirited singing led by Paul Zucca, accompanied by Danny Bittner, speeches and impromptu toasts. Miss Barbara Friend, toastmaster, made an excellent presiding officer. The address of welcome to the guests was given by Pete Weiss, an officer of the boys' Hi-Y, to which Clarence Dumm, the high school principal, made reply. Brief toasts were given by Mr. Dunbar, Miss Hull, Clifford Miller, Miss Baltz, Mr. Kurtzmaier of the high school faculty, and Mr. Fuller, boys' secretary at the Y.

The principal address of the evening was given by Poultney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson. He illustrated his talk by drawing freely on accounts of personal adventures he had had in his extensive travels. His central thought dealt with the idea that we frequently expect the worst of people we do not know or understand, but are very likely to find them friendly and cooperative when we come to know them.

After the program in the banquet room, the party adjourned to the "Y" gym for a social hour, which included a grand march, a number of relays and other games. Music for the social hour was furnished by the Modern Mountaineers.

Miss Friend, the toastmaster, expressed appreciation to the ladies at the "Y" who had prepared the meal and to the girls from the N. Y. A. who served. Also to Mr. Zucca for leading the singing and to Danny Bittner, accompanist.

Retreats were expressed that Mr. Van Ingen, who has always attended the Hi-Y banquets in the past, was unable to be present and the Hi-Y secretary, Gilbert Richter, was instructed to send him a letter making known the club's sentiments.

Ideal Girl Graduate

New York, May 7 (AP).—The ideal girl of the graduating class of Manhattan College is a blue-eyed brunette with a willowy figure and an automobile. A composite picture of her, given today after 250 men in the class voted their preference, said, "She weighs 120 pounds and is 5 feet 6 inches tall. She must be intelligent (not a genius), a good dancer, and a sensible, but not a pushover, dresser. She must be a cook and a good mixer. A cat is not a necessity, but it would be a great help."

Information About Soil Conservation

Farmers interested in the 1936 Agricultural Conservation Program may obtain information at the office opened this morning for that purpose in the Farm Bureau building, corner of John and Crown streets.

Friday there will be representatives to explain the program at the Brunswick Church Hall and at the Accord office of the Farm Cooperative Association from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

As explained at a meeting of farmers in the court house, Wednesday evening, the primary objects of the 1936 Agricultural Conservation Program are to preserve and improve soil fertility and promote the economic use of farm land.

The program is to be conducted by the farmers through state, county and community committees, assisted by the state agricultural extension service and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Two kinds of payments will be made, as explained in the following: Soil conserving payments for diverting land from soil depleting to soil conserving crops. For diverting land, other than tobacco land, this payment will be at the rate of $10.00 per acre, scaled up or down as the crop yields on the individual farm compare with average yields for the county, with a limit on the amount of land for which diversion payments can be made set at 15 per cent of the acreage of soil depleting crops on the farm in 1935. For tobacco special provisions are made.

Soil Building. This payment will be made for the planting of soil conserving crops and the carrying out of soil building practices in 1936, such as pasture improvement, liming and fertilizing legumes, growing cover crops, and reforesting at such rates as are recommended by the State Agricultural Conservation Committee and approved by the secretary of agriculture, provided that the total amount that will be paid a farmer for planting soil building crops and carrying out of these practices shall not exceed an amount equal to the number of acres of soil conserving crops on his farm in 1935 multiplied by $1.00.

Retail Coal Prices Expected to Advance

Inquiry of several of the large retail coal dealers in Kingston today brought out the fact that the mine operators have notified the dealers that coal prices would advance shortly. With the advance in the wholesale price of coal the retail prices will correspondingly advance. None of the dealers cared to state just how much the advance in price would be, but they said no figures had been furnished them by the mine operators.

For many years there has been an annual drop in the winter price of coal the first of April in Kingston. The drop in prices in the spring was taken advantage of by many householders to place their orders for the winter's supply at the lower price.

This year, owing to the trouble at the mines the retail and wholesale price of coal did not drop, and the prices prevailing are the winter prices. All of the dealers, it was said, are placing their orders with the mines for prompt delivery of coal so as to be able to fill all orders they have booked at the prices prevailing today, before the expected rise in price is consummated.

Killer of Girl Makes Alleged Confession

Boston, May 7 (AP).—Police Captain James Sheehan announced today that Harry Asher, 33, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a former resident of Maine, had confessed to the slaying of Mary Proulx, 7, of Waterville, Me. He said he placed slight credence in the confession.

Sheehan said Asher's statement contained discrepancies which appeared "inconsistent and ridiculous." Asher, Sheehan declared, said he committed the crime three weeks ago, whereas the child did not disappear until May 2, and that the girl was about to be about 15 years old, whereas the Proulx girl was only 7.

Business Activity Trend

April Industry Brightest Since 1930

(By The Associated Press)

The clang and rumble of industry during April reached the loudest spring crescendo since 1930 as demand far outstripped earlier estimates, the monthly survey of The Associated Press indicates.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity averaged 85.7 for the month, compared with 81.4 last month and 73.6 in the same period a year ago.

Steel manufacturers and automobile producers continued to pace the steady upward trend.

The persistent rise in steel operations this year has been interrupted only once, when floods swept the steel centers in mid-March. The 44.8 per cent advance since the first of the year has accompanied a booming automobile trade, a pickup in rail purchasing and sharp increases in the takings of steel by the numerous miscellaneous industries.

The current level of automobile output is 20 per cent above the March opening.

Freight carloadings have moved up 14.6 per cent from the year's low touched last month. Coal shipments and miscellaneous freight, both improving the trend of business, primarily were responsible for the improvement.

Electric power production showed moderate betterment during the period and is within striking distance of its high for the year.

Only residential building and cotton manufacturing showed no gain. The latter slipped 8.1 per cent from its March high to a new low for the year in late April. The dip in residential building was slight.

Every index making up the AP index closed the month above its 1935 level.

One of the instincts of man, even the city fellow, is a longing to work in the soil and produce something from it. You see this manifest in window boxes high up in crowded apartment buildings, or you find vegetable plots tucked in the backyards of busy people whose only claim to permanency is the deed to a twenty-five foot lot and a house.

Hudson to Appeal To State TERA Head

Hudson, N. Y., May 7 (AP).—Mayor Fred Wheeler said he would appeal today to Frederick I. Daniels, state TERA administrator in New York, to aid 1,000 persons on relief rolls here.

Mayor Wheeler turned to the TERA after Governor Lehman had sent him a telegram declaring that the state cannot increase its aid to this city "beyond the proportion of their relief costs which it now is bearing."

The mayor appealed to the governor yesterday, declaring that the relief situation here was "deplorable." He said the city's fund would last only to May 15 and that it could not borrow more money because it had issued bonds up to the constitutional limit.

Define Objectives of

Famed Monroe Doctrine

The Monroe doctrine is the term applied to the fixed policy of the United States with regard to outside interference in the affairs of the western hemisphere. This country takes the attitude that any attempt on the part of a non-American power to extend its territories in the new world, or to interfere with the internal policies of the republics of this hemisphere, is an act hostile to the United States, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

By extension this has come to mean that the United States not only will not permit further colonization by European or other foreign powers, but it will not countenance any other active interference by them in American affairs.

But it says nothing whatever about the United States interfering in the affairs of other powers.

The "doctrine," which has become practically the first principle of the American foreign policy, takes its name from President James Monroe, who enunciated it in his message to congress, December 2, 1823.

Mankind Divided Into

Three Separate Races

Dr. Alvin Hrdlicka, curator division of physical anthropology, United States national museum, Washington, D. C., recognizes three main human races today. These are: (1) the whites; (2) the yellow-browns; and (3) the blacks. Each one of these shows a number of sub-races or types which are often called "races" also. The principal of these are:

Whites—The Mediterraneans, the Alpines and the Nordics.

Yellow-browns—The Mongoloids, the Malays and the American Indian. The last named race is now generally believed to have come originally from northern Asia, and therefore of ancient Mongolian descent. Some of the natives of Central America and western South America may have crossed over from the South sea, it is conjectured.

Blacks—The Negritos, Negroids and Bushmen, the Melanesian negroes and Australians and the African negroes.

Quiet Corners

Happily the spirit of man can find quiet corners in other than material surroundings. A play which had a long run years ago had as one of its curtains the famous physician switching off one by one the lights in his consulting room, and setting down in his private corner for the half-hour of complete stillness and darkness to which he trusted to repair the nervous ravages of a busy day. It is in the power of every man to turn inward from time to time into the quiet recesses of his own soul. That withdrawal, which may be only for a moment, and may be wholly unnoticed by the surrounding throng, betokens no spirit of the surrender, no shirking of the stresses and strains of active life. Rather is it a swift pilgrimage to a secret source from which fresh power may be drawn to meet them. The man who has by patient practice learned to make it comes back to his working world not with reluctance or distaste, but rejoicing as a strong man to run his course.—The Times.

The Romance of Sausage

There are a lot of romantic things about dry sausage. A piece of Genoa sausage, for example, with the twine running in nautical loops and hitches, reminds one that Genoa was famous for its sausage, sailors and ships back in the Middle Ages.

Evidently the people of Milan, too, just couldn't forget the tall, straight lines of their cathedral. For milano sausage is corded with the twine running in lengthwise strands and always reminds one of tall church spires.

One can get a European tour by reading dry sausage names. For example, the spicy Italian sausages—milano, capicola, d'Ardea, frizzer, pepperoni and salsiccia—make one think of condottieri, of olive groves, of castles clinging to the cliffs, or of boys of dark blue water; and in the names of the lightly spiced sausages—mettwurst, farmer and holsteiner—a sturdy procession of staid old German burghers goes by.

"In God We Trust"

The inscription "In God We Trust" was placed on our currency at the suggestion of Salmon P. Chase, secretary of the treasury, in the Lincoln administration. The inscription first appeared on the pattern coin of 1863 and was adopted for use on the two-cent piece, the issuance of which began in 1864. It was used on other coins beginning in 1868. The inscription of the inscription from the first of the St. Gaudens design $10 and $20 gold coins of 1890 continued on such unfavorable comment that it was quickly removed and consequently these coins of that date are obtainable with and without the inscription.

Herbert Bell Died Here Today, Owned Harness Making Shop

Herbert Bell, who for many years conducted a harness shop on North Front street, died this morning at his home, 308 Clinton avenue. At the time of his death Mr. Bell was the proprietor of the last remaining harness making shop in the city, a trade which once flourished but which with the advent of the automobile gradually became a lost art. A real mechanic in his trade, Mr. Bell had a wide clientele and he was well known throughout the county for the excellent work which he did. He was a native of Shokan, where his folks were old time residents. Born there he lived in old Shokan for a number of years and as a young man took up the harness-maker's trade and served his apprenticeship with H. H. Herrick. Later he came to Kingston, when the Ashokan reservoir construction abolished the village of Shokan where he had conducted a shop, and opened a harness shop on North Front street. His business was one of the oldest of its kind in the city and despite the coming of the automobile which made fewer shops of its kind necessary, he continued to do a good business and his expert workmanship brought to his store people from distant points who sought his expert services.

Mr. Bell is survived by his wife, Harriet Bell, and three nieces and one nephew. Funeral services will be held from the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, 236 Fair street, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Friends wishing to view the remains may do so at any time at the W. N. Conner Funeral Home. Interment will be at the convenience of the family in Stamford cemetery, Stamford, N. Y.

No Additions Made To Day Calendar

No additions were made to the day calendar in Supreme Court this morning when the calendar was called by Clerk James A. Simpson. Justice Pister announced that due to the fact that naturalization court would be held here Friday there would be no session of Supreme Court except in the event it were necessary to conclude some case which was partially tried.

A recess was taken and court was still in recess at noon while apparently an effort was being made to adjust the two cases which were started Wednesday afternoon. They are actions brought by Hubert J. Kelly, Jr., against Mary J. Kelly, an action to set aside a deed and an action brought by Mrs. Kelly against Hubert J. Kelly, Jr., and another for ejectment.

May Organize New Civic Club Here

A new civic club may soon be organized in Kingston, according to reports which have been circulated about the city for the past few days. The new club will be affiliated with the Lions Club, a nationally known organization with member clubs in most of the larger cities throughout the country. Several Kingston business and professional men are interested in the development of a Lions Club in this city and are now contacting those men who might be interested in joining a group of this nature.

Fleming's Condition Former Supervisor Robert W. Flemming of New street, who was struck by lightning during the severe electrical storm last Sunday night, was reported as getting along quite nicely at the Benedictine Hospital this afternoon. Mr. Flemming sustained severe burns about the body, and several ribs were broken when he was hurled from his chair when struck by the lightning bolt.

"Free trade" Senators and Congressmen propose to show by figures how much the American consumer has been "taxed" by the protective tariff. But, although they have an overwhelming majority, they make no effort to repeal the tariff act.

WHAT ULSTER COUNTY PEOPLE HAD TO SPEND

Ulster county residents had "spending money" in 1935, amounting to $605 per capita, compared with a New York state average of $551 per capita and a nation-wide average of $518 per capita, according to a statistical survey of buying power conducted by "Sales Management" magazine (New York) and quoted by the office of the state director of the National Emergency Council in a report of business trends issued to its members. Spendable money is defined as the share of income actually paid out during the year for goods and services produced and rendered. The survey indicates further that Ulster county has 6553 per cent of the population of the United States and 6776 per cent of the spendable money income for the country as a whole. Its families have a median income of $960 compared with the state figure of $1,253 and the national figure of $1,474. The "median" indicates a true middle figure; it means that an equal number of families have incomes both above and below this level.

Women's Republican School Of Politics

were prophetic voices warning us of the fact that with other nations facing financial insecurity, in other words the continuing power to buy from the United States the end of the nation's enormous productivity was approaching. But from Albany where Roosevelt was governor there came no such voice of warning, and gradually we have been led into the shambles. President Hoover tried to his utmost to stem the tide, and when it could not be stayed, we were more than ready to accept Candidate Roosevelt's campaign promises of the more abundant life.

So keen were Americans to enjoy a continuance of prosperity at any cost that there were those who thought—and sometimes said—"Well, maybe a dictatorship might not be so bad."

In the evening, Mrs. Caraway went on from that point in U. S. history to show where the nation had been and are being led to and she was distressingly convincing.

She gave the reason for the enormous vote rolled up for Roosevelt as President of the United States that Republicans had lost the power of reasoning.

Asking why so many Republicans as well as Democrats voted for Roosevelt in 1932, when they should have known that he was not standing basically for the American system of government, that he was not obeying either the Republican or Democratic orthodox principles of the country according to the Constitution, Mrs. Caraway told why voters acted as they did.

Class Hatred
The element of class hatred was first invoked. In spite of his platform, declaring there must be no invasion of states' rights, etc., how could any one foresee that there would be a direct and definite reversal of every plank of the Democratic platform upon which the candidate was standing.

That brought the speaker to the pertinent question, "What did all those voters vote for then and what do they want today?" And again "What have we instead of what we desire?"

From that point on, Mrs. Caraway covered every point of alleged failure of the present administration to make good its pre-election promises. She spoke of the tax bills rushed through without debate, placing Americans today where their forefathers stood when in the Revolution they fought against taxation without representation; of the situation in which Americans find that they cannot have free use of telegraphic facilities without being tried as criminals for expressing their views in any way opposed to the prevailing government procedures, a direct invasion of the rights of individuals according to the fourth amendment of the Constitution.

Mrs. Caraway went on to tell of all the activities of the New Deal which have failed utterly with not one prophesy of the future offered by the candidate for presidency before election fulfilled. She said "The morality of this country has been completely vitiated by this administration and its whirling dervish mode of procedure. We are completely bewildered and unless we can stop this America will be lost."

Marked Contrast
In marked contrast stood out the tremendous, unexpected, not-even-looked-for achievements of the nation as such, in every possible way, under the Constitution up to the time of the World War and its dictatorship infection. During the previous 150 years "the individual" stood out as the hope and guardian of our country. His limit was set upon what any child, America might reach to, provided he or she possessed the inherent mentality and force of character to work for his objective. Yet the present administration is against individualism completely.

Mrs. Caraway could see but one way of carrying on the necessary relief activities in our country to ward off starvation, etc., and that was to place our relief program upon the same identical basis as our American Red Cross of today. She demanded the return of Civil Service procedure and other conditions which are American.

In closing, the speaker made it very plain that there is just one way in which we as the people of these United States, and particularly as the women of our land can stem this tide of un-Americanism. This is by the individual man and woman to woman, making plain the terrifying condition into which we have fallen and convincingly explaining the dire need of each possible voter taking his stand at the polls on election day in November—which pre-supposes registration at the proper time—against the President incumbent of the White House, "for," said Mrs. Caraway, "it is not enough to be against the New Deal, which he and his followers will be clever enough to divert from himself, we definitely and with all possible vigor must be and convince others to be anti-Roosevelt."

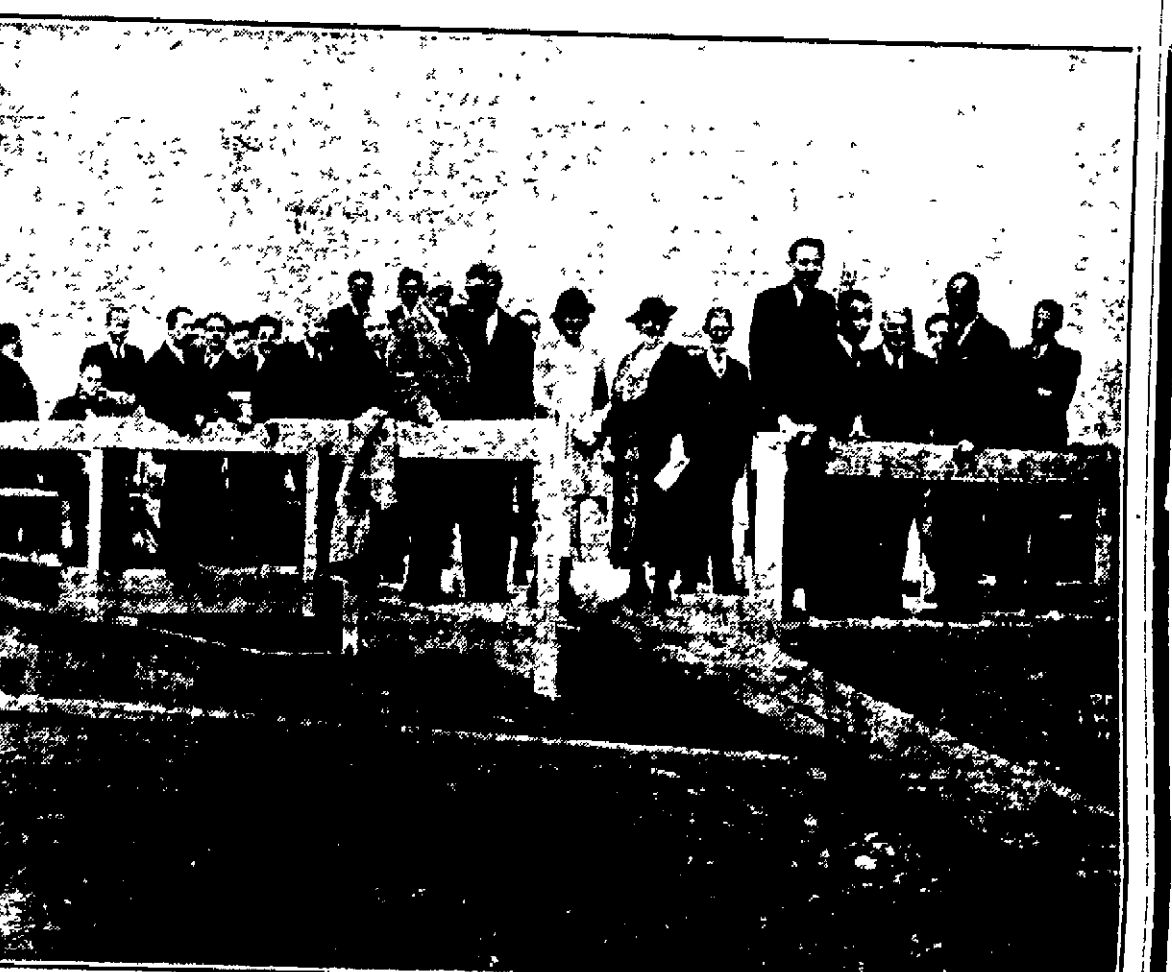

The further stated that there were enough women in the land capable of voting to turn the tide in the right direction, if we all take our stand on these United States and against the continuance of Franklin D. Roosevelt as further dictator of the nation.

"I know we do so, the American system of government is dead," concluded Mrs. Caraway, who was enthusiastically applauded and highly complimented by Mayor Heitselman and State Committee Chairman Philip E. Hine.

FHA Program For 75 Homes Gets Under Way

Mayor Conrad J. Heitselman breaks ground at ceremonies Tuesday for the first of 75 FHA homes scheduled to be erected in Kingston before December 1. The completed structure will be a model home in the Roosevelt Park section of the city.

The mayor with executives of the FHA and prominent builders, contractors and representatives of structural concerns, together with interested onlookers looking over the new development, where some of the proposed homes will be constructed.

part of the state, making it plain that women of New York state are not without opportunity for learning of the state of the country and state and what they may do to make those conditions much better.

One of the thought-provoking things which Mrs. Remington first told the women present was that in the last four years the budget of New York state has increased $95,000,000. When former Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt took office as the governor of this state there was a surplus of $97,000,000 and Governor Lehman will leave the gubernatorial office with a $87,000,000 deficit.

Mrs. Remington devoted much of her talk to the relief situation from various angles. She said there had been much waste from the top at Washington, right down to the towns of the United States, and declared that the waste would continue until the entire relief problem was taken over by the localities themselves. Relief costs are increasing except where the localities are in charge of their own problem.

Tax Problem
The speaker devoted some time to the problem of taxes and still more taxes to come and stated that the Republican party was decidedly against the social security act, especially in New York state when it is known that a considerable portion of New York state taxes are carried over into the middle west.

Mrs. Remington spoke again in the evening, holding the closest attention of her audience by her convincing talk.

A surprise speaker who was very welcome was a member of the executive committee of the New York state Republican committee and its secretary, Miss Natalie Couch, of Nyack, who spoke both afternoon and evening, telling of recent and continuing legislation in the state of New York and commending thereon as to the dire lack of common sense as shown in much of it and stressing the control of our own Assembly by the federal government at Washington.

The cruel conditions imposed upon many unfortunate American citizens because of some of the hidden legislation—hidden as the actual support—was made plain by Miss Couch.

THREE SOUGHT IN SLAYING

Spurred by a $1,000 reward, police hunted three men in the slaying of seven-year-old Mary Pross, whose bound body was found in a clump of bushes in Waterville, Wis. Appropriation Bill For Relief Goes To House

phia to the new federal vault at Fort Knox, Ky., were disclosed today in a report of hearings before a House appropriations sub-committee.

W. C. Cram, Jr., of the bureau of the mint, told the committee it will cost $1,429,240 to ship the bullion of this $104,440 will be for guards.

The gold will be moved on special trains. On each will be a company of federal troops two secret service men, ten federal plain-clothes men and two agents of the post office department.

The transportation cost alone is estimated by the post office at 10 cents a pound.

A second treasure chest for the nation, one to provide vault facilities for 2,000,000 ounces of silver on the military academy reservation at West Point, N. Y., at a cost of $600,000 was among eligible projects of major size which the treasury told the committee "would be available for consideration in connection with the next building program."

William M. McReynolds, administrative assistant to Secretary Morgenthau in a letter dated March 20 said there was now stored at various agencies 1,002,900,000 ounces of silver.

"At the rate silver has accumulated during the past six months," he said, there will be added during the next 16 months 1,089,120,000 ounces making the estimated stocks in New York and Philadelphia as of June 30, 1937, of 1,968,620,000. It will require the purchase of approximately 2 1/2 billion ounces of silver to comply with the silver law of 1934.

WPA Wage Averages

The average for 1 States was $50.03. The average monthly wage in New York city was $32.23.

The averages were made public in published hearings by the House appropriations committee on the proposed new $1,500,000,000 works progress fund.

The publicity seeker—and his name is the well-known legend—is one of the banes of the life of a New York newspaper man. Hardly a liner arrives but that an individual, or some one representing some one else, comes to the ship news reporters with the suggestion of a "good story." Experts in their line, the ship news men are quick to weed out the phonies. Occasionally one slips through and that encourages others. Ship news photographers are equally besieged. Reporters assigned to City Hall get their full share of the publicity hounds, phones visiting there daily in the hope of wangling a line or two of print. All big trials, of course, attract them in numbers. Last year, many made the journey to Flemington, N. J., and obtained tickets to the Hauptmann trial not only because of interest in the proceedings but in the hope of mention.

Many of those whose earnest desire is publicity are meat tickets for press agents. They don't care much what is said about them so long as they get into the papers. So the press agents dig up ancient gags and attach names of their clients. Or they manufacture bright stuff and accredit to some one who never had an idea—save seeing his name in type. Many actors, fortunate enough to have engagements, do not depend on the press agent of the show but employ press agents of their own. Radio performers do the same. With them, however, it is strictly business. But they have stern competition with a lot of amateurs.

That yearning for publicity has been capitalized by others than press agents. Night clubs frequented by columnists, other scribblers and photographers play to such a clientele. All sorts of courtesies are extended to the ladies and gentlemen of the press because their presence draws a class of trade willing to spend money, and that balances up whatever may be consumed "on the house."

Down in Miami recently, George Ade, Bruce Barton, John N. Wheeler and Grantland Rice called on Carl Fisher, who developed Miami Beach and who lost his fortune in the development of Montauk Point. In the course of reminiscences, Mr. Fisher told a story of Barney Oldfield with whom he was closely associated in the old days. Oldfield was racing on a small track on a bad day with not more than a thousand persons present. The greasy track and a blowout caused him to crash through the fence and kill or severely injure two spectators. Later Oldfield informed Fisher that if every man, woman and child, who had shaken hands with him since that accident and told him they were present when it happened, had been truthful there would have been such a large and lucrative crowd he never would have had to drive again.

Another press agent yarn just bobbed up. It seems that the publicity man of a well-known night club was eager to get in touch with one of the editors of a weekly magazine in the hope of landing a radio spot for one of his clients. For three weeks he haunted the editor's office with no success. Worn out and in despair, he went to the club that employed him one evening and began to soak up his boss' liquor. While so doing, he met a pleasant companion and they drank together until 3 a. m. As they were parting, they exchanged names. You've guessed it—the drinking pal was the editor and not once had the client's name been mentioned!

The doorman of an East side apartment house told me of the cranky tenant whose tempers for six months or more kept the entire house staff in an upset state. Nothing could please him—he had a complaint concerning everything that was done or left undone. To make matters worse, he never tipped. From porter to superintendent, all willingly would have attended his hanging. Recently, he surrendered his lease and moved to the country. On his departure, he left an envelope for each employee. In each was a final complaint, one that fairly blistered. But with it was a $50 bill. The currency turned out to be real and all employees of that house are still going around a trifle dazed.

Bus top eavesdropping: "If I was her, I wouldn't go anywhere with him any more. When he takes her out, he treats her just as mean as he does his own wife."

London.—American girl dancers are still way ahead of their English sisters, declares Mistinguette, darling of the French music halls and owner of the "million-dollar legs." "The girls are pretty, certainly, but they have not got that gaiety, that chic, that sex appeal that American dancers have."

Bankers to Meet On Softball Field
There was considerable stir in the financial institutions of the city yesterday, but it was of an entirely different nature than might be presumed. The downtown bankers challenged their uptown brethren to a game of softball, or baseball. The uptown pen-pushers responded at once with a demand for a game within a week. If possible, saying they were waiting for an opportunity to get revenge for the last bank ball game played in June, 1934, when Roundout overwhelmed uptown, 11-2. Softball will be played this year, as the members of both teams are entirely unprofessional in manner and behavior while on the field, and the possibility of a cracked head or a discolored eye is not so great in softball. The uptown spokesman yesterday was Ed Freese, of the Trust Company, who asserted his boys would go into action at slightest notice. Downtown Manager Carpenter, of the First National of Roundout, warned all concerned that his men were even more dangerous than in the years of their glory when they sunk the Wall Streeters easily. The game will be played Thursday or Friday of next week, if arrangements can be made. All employees and directors of all the banks are expected to be present in the cheering sections, and a large representation of depositors will no doubt be present also, to witness the unusual brand of softball to be demonstrated.

C. enters the City League competition prepared to do things and go places. Grunenwald's is made up of experienced players, a majority of the team having played together as members of the Kingston Senecas last summer.

Glasco All Stars Defeat Huron Indians, After One Bad Inning

If all the games in the Kingston City League maintain the standard that has been set by the first two, for interest and something doing every minute, it isn't taking too many chances to prophesy one of the most successful seasons the League has had.

The second game of the schedule, played Wednesday night, between the Glasco All Stars and the Huron Indians, with a final score of 7 to 6 in favor of the Glasco boys, was a real game and the spectators (those that chipped in) got their money's worth.

At the start it looked as if the two teams were staging a real, old-time Indian massacre of Colonial days, with the Glascos taking the role of the frightened settlers and the Hurons living up to the blood-thirsty record of their namesakes of the olden times.

At the end of the first inning the score stood 6 to 1 in favor of the Indians. Then the scene changed. The Glascos got over their stage fright and not an Indian tommy-bawk did damage thereafter, while the All Stars picked up two runs in the third, three in the fifth and another in the last inning, to give them the game by a margin of one run.

The Indians made their runs in the first mostly by the aid of a number of errors, three being charged against Tessandori. The trouble started when there was a mix-up between Morelli and Francello on Kelder's short fly to right center. Kelder winding up on second base, Bruno fumbled Snyder's grounder and Regan scored, Kelder with a sacrifice along the first base line.

Snyder scored on Howard's single to center. Yonetti drew a pass and F. Neff singled. J. Russo having been safe off Tessandori's error. The latter then completed his list of mis-cues by booting the ball and when the smoke had lifted the sixth run was in. That settled it and Bruno's pitching held the Indians down for the balance of the game.

Glasco's run in the first came on Francello's single, steal to second and an error by Kelder.

In the third J. Russo walked, Marabella singled and Ed. Morelli's hit, aided by Russo's poor throw from center, brought in two runs.

Three more runs came in the fifth after M. Morelli had singled and Marabella, E. Morelli and Provenzano got to Pitcher North for some hard blows.

The final run came on M. Morelli's two-bagger, followed by J. Russo's double to center.

Figures a Complete Sweep for Middletown

The Middletown Times Herald sports writer can't see anything but Middletown in the coming track meet between Kingston and Middletown High Schools.

He bases his opinion on the fact that whereas Middletown defeated Poughkeepsie by an overwhelming score, the Bridge City trackmen turned around and administered just about the same dose to the Kingston boys. He believes the Middle will "shut Coach Kias's Maroon squad out of every first place."

Kingston gathered in two first places in the Poughkeepsie meet—Weiner taking the 100 and the relay team winning out. As he sees it Weiner should do no better than third behind Vail and Nelson of Middletown, while the Kingston relay team's winning time of 1:50 is compared with the 1:37.5 made by the Middle against the New York Military Academy the same afternoon.

In the broad jump Middletown has three men who can do 20 feet or better, led by Gordon Dorton with a record of 21 feet, 10 inches.

Big Gate for McLarnin Canzoneri Match

New York, May 7 (AP).—Madison Square Garden officials, weary of looking at empty seats on fight nights, rubbed their hands in satisfaction today and prepared to pack 'em in tomorrow night for the ten round scrap between Tony Canzoneri, king of the lightweight, and Jimmy McLarnin, former welterweight champion.

Although no title will be at stake, the first meeting between these two, has created a tremendous interest because nobody has found a satisfactory way to dope out the winner.

This uncertainty, the popularity of both fighters and the prospects of seeing a real scrap already had brought some $40,000 into the Garden's till yesterday and officials were looking forward to a near capacity crowd of around 18,000 and a gate of between $60,000 and $70,000.

That would be the largest, at a Garden-promoted show since McLarnin and Benny Leonard drew a little more than $60,000 in October, 1932.

The fighters wound up their hard work yesterday, McLarnin at a New York gym and Tony at his farm up at Marlborough, N. Y., and both were reported in fine condition.

CALIFORNIA FRESHMEN WILL ROW AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Berkeley, Calif., May 7 (AP).—Carol M. (Ky) Eblight, coach of the University of California's crews, announced today he would take the powerful freshman crew to the Poughkeepsie regatta with the varsity early next month.

The freshman oarsmen won all their local races this year, but lost to the University of Washington. They were chosen for the eastern trip over the junior varsity.

Manager DeCicco Formally Protests League Opening Game

The 2 to 0 victory credited to the Berardi A. C. against the Hedrick Breds in the City League opener Tuesday night has been formally protested by Manager James DeCicco, of the Hedricks.

In filing his official protest with Secretary Charles Tiano, Manager DeCicco gives the following reasons as the basis of his protest:

1. Continual delaying of the game.
2. Unnecessary arguing with the umpire.

3. Most of the Berardi players walking off the field after Umpire Dulin had called play in the last half of the seventh, when the tying run was on third base.

4. Umpire Dulin's failure to restrict Berardi A. C. to a limited amount of time to retake positions after calling play.

A meeting of the managers and officials has been called to act on the protest Monday evening at 7 o'clock at city hall. Judge Bernard A. Culleton, president of the league, will preside.

WOLF SUCCEEDS SNAVELY AS NORTH CAROLINA COACH

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 7 (AP).—Athletic Director Robert A. Fetzer said today that Raymond (Bear) Wolf probably would continue the same general system of football used here the past two years when he takes over the University of North Carolina football team Monday.

Wolf, Texas Christian University athletic director, last night notified Fetzer of his acceptance of a three-year contract as head football coach, succeeding Carl Gray Snavely who quit last winter to go to Cornell.

Huge Entry List For U. S. Open Golf

New York, May 7 (AP).—An unexpected rush of entries not only has given the United States Golf Association the largest entry list in the history of the U. S. Open golf championship to reckon with when the sectional qualifying tests are run off next Monday, but has made it necessary to increase the field for the championship proper, June 4 to 6.

A final checkup of the lists today revealed a total entry of 1,275 players, including 39 who won exemption from the sectional qualifying rounds by being the low scorers in the 1935 open, two Japanese professionals, Torchy Toda and Chick Chin, and the home club pro, Johnny Farrell.

The 1,245 non-exempt players will tour 36 holes each over 28 courses Monday trying to win the 157 available in the final tests at the Baltusrol Club, Short Hills, N. J. Due to the huge entry list, 101 above the previous record of 1,177 set in 1930, the field was increased from 160 to 170 starters in the championship.

CHEVRIES DRUB A. D. ROSE SOFTBALLERS 18-7

The Chevrolet softball tossers set back the A. D. Rose team for the second time of the season, giving them an 18-7 trimming.

Every Chevy player connected safely at least once while Vince Smedes and Earl Newell had three apiece with Smedes polling two triples. "Muscles" Balfe was on the mound for the losers, being picked for 19 hits. Ben Toffel tossed them for the Chevries, giving up eight hits.

The Chevries will cross bats with Battery A at Barmann's lot tonight at 6:15, weather permitting.

C. & R. DROP 6-5 GAME OF SOFTBALL TO APPLEKNOCKERS.

The Catskill Appleknockers defeated the Cornell Reduces in a game of softball played at the Fair Grounds Wednesday evening, before a good crowd, the score being six to five.

It was a well played game, but one error being charged and three sharp double plays being a feature. Don Kelly hit for the circuit in the sixth inning, with one man on. Ben Fels was in the box for the winners, with Kelly catching. Vogel and Snyder did the pitching for the C. & R., with Woods behind the bat. The Appleknockers outlit their opponents, 5 to 6. The game was close, with the C. & R. taking a two run lead at the end of the second.

YOU CAN'T SMOKE CLAIMS

Consider these facts about America's largest-selling cigar

When you read claims about cigars... of this kind of tobacco—and that kind of tobacco... just ask yourself these questions.

Why don't these cigars give me some real pleasure in smoking? Why all the rawness and harshness—the bitter, bitey taste—the waste of cigars thrown away half smoked?

The answer is this—and it's the reason why millions of smokers have switched to PHILLIES and made it America's largest-selling cigar.

GOOD TOBACCOS ARE NOT ENOUGH

All raw tobaccos—even the finest—contain bitter oils and other harsh elements. If these are not removed, they cause harshness, bitterness and bitey taste in cigars.

Ordinary methods either fail to take them out—or in doing so, destroy the pure, fine taste of the tobacco. In one case you get bitter, bitey cigars... in the other, you get cigars that are flat and insipid.

Bayuk solved this problem. It invented a process that not only removes the harsh, bitter elements from the tobacco, but improves the pure, real tobacco flavor.

No other cigar manufacturer uses this process. It is exclusive to Bayuk.

DON'T LET CLAIMS FOOL YOU

Mere claims for a cigar are easy to make—but you can't smoke claims. The real test of a cigar is the pleasure it gives you. Does it please and satisfy your particular taste?

When you stop to think that PHILLIES pleases the taste of more men than any other cigar in America— isn't it only reasonable to assume that PHILLIES will please you.

BAYUK'S EXCLUSIVE PROCESS

This picture shows an important unit in the exclusive Bayuk Process for extracting the bitter oils and other harsh elements from the fine tobaccos used in PHILLIES. This Process—invented by Bayuk and covered by patent protection—enables you to enjoy the full flavor of the fine tobaccos—without any bitter, bitey, harsh taste. No other cigar manufacturer uses this process. Bayuk invites you to visit the factory and see this process in operation.

Durant Would Double Parents' Exemptions

New York, May 7 (AP)—As a means of encouraging marriage and parenthood in the middle class, Will Durant, the author, proposed in a prepared address today that the income tax exemption permitted parents for each dependent child be doubled.

He also suggested, in a paper scheduled for delivery at the annual meeting of the American Eugenics Society, that the dowry system be restored and that government and private industry automatically increase the remuneration of an employee upon marriage and the birth of each child.

"Democracy," he said, "will probably disappear if popular intelligence fails to keep pace with popular power. We are not sure that ability is transmitted, but the history of animal breeding makes it probable.

"If it is, the inferiority of the able is a heavy drag on the efforts of our schools to raise the mental level of our people."

Dr. Durant advocated lowering the birthrate among those less fit for parenthood by segregation or sterilization of all persons sufficiently feeble-minded to require public care and by the dissemination of birth control information.

It is proposed in the Senate to give liberty to Puerto Rico and many of the Puerto Ricans object, thereby messing up the situation. If we are determined to get rid of the island and can't do it any other way, may we get Secretary Wallace to plow it under.

Sam Mann May Head Surplus Foods Here

Mayor Heiselman in Response to Overtures Made on Behalf of the State WPA Said That Mr. Mann's Appointment Would Be Satisfactory to Him.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman's refusal to recognize the appointment of John J. Duffy of Rosendale to succeed Albert H. Shultis of this city, who for several years has had charge of the distribution of the federal surplus food and clothing, led yesterday afternoon to overtures being made to him on behalf of the State WPA as to whether he would be willing to accept the appointment of a local man.

It is understood that the mayor said he would agree if the State WPA insisted on replacing Mr. Shultis, if the local man appointed was capable of handling the job.

It is understood that the name of Sam N. Mann, former alderman and deputy city clerk, has been suggested as the man to replace Mr. Shultis. Mr. Mann's appointment, it is said, would meet the approval of the mayor.

Mayor Heiselman when informed the first of May that Mr. Duffy had been named to succeed Mr. Shultis stated that Mr. Duffy's appointment would not be recognized and that he would not be allowed the use of the ERF headquarters. The refusal to recognize Mr. Duffy was due to the fact that Mr. Duffy was not a resident of Kingston.

will appoint Mr. Mann shortly to the position now held by Mr. Shultis.

Just when the commissary and clothing bureau would be reopened is not known. The commissary and bureau have been shut down since the first of May. The ERF has the authority to reopen both departments and distribute the clothing and surplus foods on hand, but if they did so without the authority of the State WPA it would mean that the ERF would have to pay the salaries of the ones employed in the distribution.

More surplus foods have been shipped and are en route to Kingston.

It is expected that the controversy between Mayor Heiselman and the State WPA will be ironed out this week with the appointment of Mr. Mann to succeed Mr. Shultis.
